Prelude

From the Shipping Register of Yarmouth, Norfolk County, England

Apr. 13, 1637

The examination of John Ropear, of New Buckman, (Buckenham) carpentar, ageed 26 yeares, with Alles his wife ageed 23 yeares with two children Alles and Elizabeth, are desirous to go for New England there to remaine.

The Ropers.

CHAPTER I.

Their Evolution.

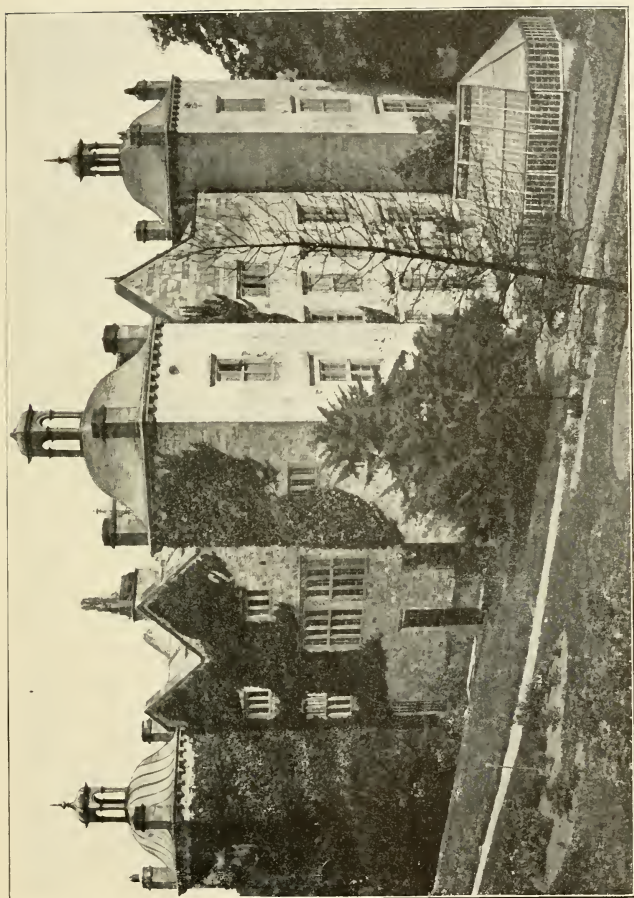

As the English life of our ancestors antedated their life in the Colonies, so, a few paragraphs upon their name and home across the sea, must precede our introduction to our first American parents.

New Buckenham, Norfolk County, England, is at no great distance westward from the seaport of Yarmouth. A fair idea of the region may be gained from "The Norfolk and Suffolk Broads," a book not uncommon in our large public libraries. The town is in the vicinity of Buckenham Broad, one of those vast shallow inbreaks of the North Sea which make these two counties the paradise of those who take their holidays upon the water; yachts, houseboats, pleasure craft of every description, congregate there like flocks of great sea fowl. No facility is lacking for fishing, bathing, entertaining; for the study of Nature or for the worship of Mammon. The pleasure-seekers form a large community of themselves, and certain unwritten laws, safeguarding the comfort of each and all, are de rigueur among them. Whether John Roper and his sons ever looked upon the like is doubtful. However, three hundred years represent far less change in English customs than in our own, and there was probably in 1637 something on the Norfolk Broads, which has been merged into this modern holiday making.

The name of Roper has been evolved from a somewhat fantastic origin. The student of Early English finds a period when men had to write and speak a little Latin in order to be in fashion. Their names even must be Latinized, or take on some fanciful appendage in that language. Accordingly, our first known ancestor, one Musard, (probably of Norman descent) becomes Hasculphus. His grandson, William of Miserden, Gloucester County, assumed the title De Rubra Spatha, or Red Sheath, in the time of Henry III. This was shortened into Rospeare and passed through the various stages of Rousper, Rooper, Ropere and Roper, to the last of which the family has held. William of the Red Sheath and his Saxon wife, Elnith, were great benefactors of St. Martin's Priory in Dorn. His son was Adam of Swacliffe, County Kent, and this was the home of Sir William Roper, husband of Margaret More, whose noble devotion to her father, Sir Thomas, has touched all hearts from 1535 to the present day, and from whom all English Ropers desire to claim their descent.

While we shall see little in the first American home, to hint at the "boast of heraldry and the pomp of power," we cannot wholly ignore the subject here. The name of Roper is very common in England at the present time, and there are apparently seven distinct branches of the nobility among them, mentioned in the volumes of heraldic emblems. The one most interesting to us for various reasons is that of West Dereham, Norfolk County. Its description is as follows:

"Crest a buck's head, erased, or, attired, sa; in mouth a pear, gold, stalked, leaved, vert." The interpretation of this can be found by any one interested, in the Books of Heraldry.

The Seat of Col. Trevor Roper, of Kent County, Eng., At Plus Teg, Mold, Flintshire, North Wales.

The benefactions of William De Rubra Spatha and his wife Elnith, have already been mentioned. A recent communication from England shows that the spirit of devotion to the church was still alive in the family during the fifteenth century. This letter, which is given below, was written in reply to a note of inquiry sent the previous year.

NEW BUCKENHAM, Norfolk (Eng.), Oct. 8. 1902.
Dear Madam:—

I must apologize for the delay in replying to your most interesting letter and shall be most happy to assist you as far as I am able.

"In 1437," Bloomfield, in his History of Norfolk, says, "John Roper of Banham gave 12/ to the Lamp that burns before the Virgin Mary in the church." This refers of course to the Banham church. Now Banham is only two and a half miles from New Buckenham.

I happen to be steward of the manor of New Buckenham, otherwise Buckenham late Priory. The Court Rolls date from 1619. I find that Thomas Roper was a tenant of this Manor in respect of land at Tibenham in the year 1621. In the year 1649, William Roper (possibly a son) was a tenant of this Manor. Tibenham is about three miles from New Buckenham.

I should be most happy to search the Registers at New Buckenham, Banham and Tibenham churches for you, and it might be expedient to search Old Buckenham Registers as well. As I know the clergy of these parishes, I feel sure that every possible facility would be afforded me. I don't know what fee would be charged, but if you wish, I could approach them and procure full particulars for you.

There is still a John Roper living in Banham. He is about seventy years of age. I have had some conversation with him and he is of opinion that he belongs to a very old family but I could get no information from him likely to be of service to you.

I have no photograph of Banham Church at hand, but will do myself the pleasure of sending you one as soon as I have an opportunity of photographing it.

Yours very truly,

LLEWELLYN WILLIAMS,
Postmaster of New Buckenham.

P. S.—New Buckenham has an interesting history,—Old Market Cross, Castle, etc., etc., but more of this another time.

After consultation with the president of our Association, a reply was sent to Mr. Williams, asking his coöperation on the lines suggested in his letter. Nothing further has been received, and his silence leads to the fear that meantime he may have been removed by death. It is evident that, by a few weeks of patient research on the part of some one vitally interested, and by the discreet use of a little money for fees, we might find the records, not only of John Roper of New Buckenham, but also those of his ancestors for generations previous, perhaps even of that Musard from whom we sprang.

In the historical chapters which cover the period from 1637 to 1800, the events in which our ancestors were vitally interested are copied from the records, with the hope of enabling the present generation to enter into their daily lives. The quaint forms of expression and spelling have been preserved in all cases.

CHAPTER II.

The Dedham Home.

One day, about the year 1880, a member of the Worcester Society of Antiquity said to the author, "Have you ever studied the history of your family? It is full of tragic interest, and well worthy of attention."

The remark brought up memories of traditions told me by my father; traditions of the unique service of the Ten Brothers in the Revolutionary War, and, more remote, of repeated massacres and captivity among the Indians; of great hardships and sorrow in the daily life of our ancestors of the seventeenth century. It led to a research begun in little more than idle curiosity, soon deepening, however, into a profound conviction that the story, a plain unvarnished tale, ought to be one of the prized possessions of their posterity near and far. As time went on, and materials accumulated, the plan of a mere sketch was abandoned. Mainly, perhaps, through the influence of the recently established Roper Association of the United States, a more comprehensive work became necessary, and a genealogical record, in some lines complete to date, has been added. The result is before you and is, first and foremost, an invitation addressed to all lineal descendants of the Sterling and Rutland Ropers, and to all kindred lines of an earlier date who must exist somewhere in New England, but who are as yet undiscovered. The invitation bids you home to Grandfather Roper's house in Dedham, Mass., and although it reaches you in this year of our Lord 1904, the visit is to be made in the late autumn of 1637. We shall be a mutual astonishment, they to us, and we to them. Come with loving reverence, for they are our very own, though far away in the past; with tender sympathy, for they suffered sorely that we might enjoy; with deep respect, for they had that magnificent strength of character which could put behind home, kindred, comfort, and turn resolutely to face the Unknown for the sake of an Idea. Such as these cannot easily accommodate themselves to us. Our beliefs or our lack of them, our literature, our dress, our appliances, in short, our entire life, would be to them a source of distrust, alarm and profound grief. Let us efface ourselves and enter whole-souled into their lives.

We shall see as we approach, not the stately mansion of the grandparents of to-day, but a log cabin far ruder in construction than those in which our sportsmen friends find shelter in the Maine woods or in the forests of the Rockies. It is of a single story with a chimney on the outside at each end, made below of flat stones, above of sticks, daubed within and without with clay. For windows there are small openings in the wall, destitute of glass, with board shutters to be closed at night. The door is of heavy plank, unpaneled, and a huge wooden latch on the inside is its only fastening. It is a typical home. In Dedham, 1664, ninety-five of these log houses were still standing, closely huddled together, for the Pequot War was on when we landed in America and no one in this frontier town was suffered to build remote from neighbors.

But the latch-string is out for us, and the family awaiting our arrival within. Grandpa John receives us with grave courtesy, but we can see that his emotions are deeply stirred at our multitudinous presence for he murmurs a portion of Genesis 13:16. By his side is Grandma Roper, gentle and loving, with the bloom of England still lingering in the cheeks that will be stained ere long by tears of bitterest woe. Her only appearance upon the page of history is her signature to the melancholy petition from Lancaster in 1676, addressed to the General Court, praying for carts to remove the miserable remnant to a place of safety. The leading spirit in the welcome extended to us is the son John, twenty-six years of age. He it is who went to Yarmouth, England, to undergo the strict examination imposed upon Nonconformists who wished to emigrate to America. He it is who has built this house, and whose wisdom and energy, aided by his father's counsel, must provide for future emergencies, of which, as yet, he happily knows nothing. And here is his wife, Alice, twenty-three years old, overflowing with hospitality and happiness, while little Alice and Elizabeth make shy advances to our Dorothies, Gertrudes and Minettas. We share their evening meal; and now it is our twentieth century hearts that are stirred as the venerable old man gives thanks, speaking on this great occasion to his heavenly Father, the thoughts he could not utter to a human being. The Puritan did not wear his heart upon his sleeve, and we must look below the surface to find our real grandfather whose love for us, and earnest sympathy are beyond doubt, but whose feelings will find no expression in words addressed to us. Chamberlain well says that while there was much tender sweetness in the family relations of those days, it was the sweetness of the violet growing upon the edge of a snowbank. Alice will show us with pride and pleasure the two large rooms below, and the loft above, reached by a ladder fixed to the wall. The greater part of the furniture came from England with the family, but there are many makeshifts, invented by her husband to meet the new conditions. Perhaps the most interesting of these are the low blocks in the corner of the huge fireplace, seats of the two little girls who nestle close together there, seen but not heard.

An inventory dated ten years later gives a fair idea of the average estate of the period. It is that of a man personally invited by John Winthrop to share his fortunes in the exodus of 1630; a man whose blood has been crossed with our own in marriage. In this case, as in all others where the original records are copied, their spelling is preserved.

8 cows at 4*l* 10*s*. a peece,
1 pr. oxen,
Also 1 pair 3 years old,
2 young steers, 2 heifers, 1 mare,
7 hoggs, 4 ewes,
1 ewe lamb, 2 wether lambs,
Grain and corne in barne and on ground,
1 flock bed with other implements in the Parlor chamber,
His wearing apparel, A table and chaires,
10 pewter dishes with other pieces of pewter,
2 plates, dripping pans and a Trammel,
5 pair of sheets, 2 pillow cases,
2 table cloths, 12 napkins with other linen,
1 feather bed, 1 flock bed with furniture,
3 Brass kettles, 3 pots, 3 skilletts in the kitchen, 4 fitches of Bacon in the cellar, and a few pieces of pork in a barrel.

The possession of two tablecloths and twelve napkins must have made the owner a marked man in those days. The inventory of his brother, dated August 28, 1651, shows no such luxury. It is as follows :

4 working oxen,
5 cows,
3 steers,
2 heifers,
3 calves,
1 mare, 1 ewe, 8 swine,
Corne in the barne,
10 pieces of pewter,
3 pieces of brass,
3 iron pots,
5 pair sheets,
1 table cloth,
2 pillow beers,
Bedding and the furniture belonging to it,
His wearing apparel,
2 muskets and other arms,
Tubs and other wooden vessels,
1 table, 1 cupboard,
2 chairs and other lumber,
Iron tools, carte, plows, chaines and other instruments of husbandry,
Also for his servants' time that he hath yet to serve,
House, barn, 100 a's of land, 25 a. plowed and ten of meadow, valuation 80£.
Also 2 steers forgotten. Entire estate, 133£ 14s. 4d.

It will be observed that neither of these lists show a single piece of china or crockery of any sort. The limited supply of provisions also demands notice. No mention of wheat in any form occurs in either inventory. Game abounded. The streams and the sea yielded fish to be had for the taking, but the art of canning foods was unknown. If we consider the effect upon our own tables of removing all fruits and foods preserved by this process, all use of wheaten flour, and remember that their staple, Indian corn, must either have been carried a long distance to be ground at one of their very few mills, or coarsely broken up by the toilsome process learned from the savages, we can understand to some extent the cause of the great mortality in those settlements where half the people died in their first winter. The fact that our family all survived their initial year of emigrant life shows that they met their hardships intelligently and conquered them.

We are yet to be introduced to Walter Roper, two years younger than John. At this date he has formed no family ties and is "looking around." He was attracted from the beginning to the northern coast towns of Massachusetts, where there was much to remind him of their English home, and he ultimately settled there, although his family spent much time in Dedham while Grandfather John lived.

CHAPTER III.

Early Colonial Life in Dedham.

In Holton's List of passengers to America between 1620 and 1640, is the following statement:—

“These people with others went to New England with William Andrews, Mr. of the Paul and Dorothy of Ipswich, and with his sone John Andrews Mr. of the Rose of Yarmouth.” . . . The number of families and single persons in this list shows that the two vessels above named brought a large company of emigrants to Boston. Near the end is: “The examination of John Roper, Apr. 13, 1637,” and it would seem probable that he sailed from the neighboring port of Yarmouth.

The unrest of England in church and state was becoming serious at this time. The government measures grew more drastic, month by month, in dealing with the disaffected of the Established Church, forcing them to consider whether it were best to bear the ills they had, or flee to those they knew not of. The exodus to America assumed such proportions that restrictions were multiplied, in order to keep it within bounds. On February 21, 1634, an order was issued to detain ten vessels, then lying in the Thames, with passengers about to sail for New England. On April 3, 1635, Hanna Roper is allowed to sail for St. Christopher's on the Paul of London, John Acklin, Mr., without hindrance, she “having brought Certificate of Conformitie to the Church of England." On March 30, 1638, an order was issued for the detention of eight vessels then in the Thames "prepared to go for New England" and for putting on shore all the passengers who had that destination in view. A week later the king gave order that no more passengers should leave for New England except for license specially had and obtained from the Privy Council. The year 1637 seems to have been a favorable time for escape without serious annoyance.

Boston and Salem were in their infancy and Plymouth in her teens when our people landed here. Nothing is known of the passage over, nor of the causes that led to settling in Dedham, then on the frontier. There, at Town Meeting, August 11, 1637, it was "Granted that John Bacheler and John Roper (Sen.) may have Lotts with us. Also ye like to Martin Phillips unto whom Nic^o. Phillips pmseth pt of his Lott to set an house upon, pvided that they breng crtiffocates and subscribe unto or covents accordingly." This was done in "Dedham Town Booke for the entering and recording of all such orders as ar or shall be for the government thereof, as followeth:

THE COVENANT.

"I. We whose names are hereunto subscribed, doe, in the feare and reverence of our Almighty God, mutually; and severally pmise amongst ourselves and each to other to pffesse and practice one trueth according to that most pfect rule, the foundation whereof is everlasting Love;

"II. That we shall by all meanes Laboure to keepe of (f) from us all such as ar contrayre minded and receave onely such unto us as be such as may be pbably of one harte with us that we either knowe or may well and truely be informed to walke in a peaceable conversation with all meekeness of spirit for the edification of each other in the knowledge and faith of the Lord Jesus; and the mutual encouragement unto all Temporall comforts in all things; seeking the good of each other out of all which may be derived true Peace.

“III. That if at any time difference shall arise betwene pties of our said Towne; that then such ptie and pties shall prsently Referre all such difference unto some one 2 or 3 others of our said societie, to be fully accorded and determined without any further delaye if it possibly may bee;

“IV. That every man that now, or at any time heereafter shall have Lotts in our said Towne shall pay his share in all such Rates of money and charges as shall be imposed upon him Rateably in pportion with other men. As allso become freely subject unto all such orders and constitutions as shall be necessarily had or made now or at any time heereafter from this day forward as well for Loveing and comfortable societie in our said Towne as allso for the psperous and thriveing Condicion of our said Fellowshipe, especially respecting the feare of God in which we desire to begine, and continue whatsoever we shall by his Loveing favoure take in hand.

“V. And for the better manefestation of our true Resolution heere in every man so receaved; to subscribe heere unto his name, there by obligeing both himself and his successors after him forever as we have done.”

Of the hundred and twenty-five signers to this covenant, John Roper, Sen., was the forty-sixth. This act virtually made each man a charter member, giving him all town privileges, while those who came later were made Freemen by special ceremony. John, Jun., accepted the responsibility in Dedham, June 2, 1641, and Walter in Boston, May 18, 1642.

Of the three men to whom land was granted August 11, 1637, Martin Phillips was evidently a chum of John, Sen., and this glimpse of their friendship seems to bring them very near. Whenever both were present at ye Towne Meeting (and they were liable to fine for failure to attend) they sat together. If either was absent, the other occupied a seat quite remote from the usual place, as is shown by the order in which the names are recorded.

On January 1, 1638, or by their reckoning, on ye 1st day of ye 11th month 1637, the Town Meeting occupied itself with plans for a church edifice. Twenty were already established in New England, and the year 1638 produced five more in the following order: Sandwich, Hampton, Dover, Salisbury, Dedham, the latter being the twenty-fifth. Four men were chosen to take in hand the building of a "meeting house, 36 foote in length, 20 foote in bredth, and betwene ye uppr and nether sell, in ye studds 12 foote, the same to be girte about. Allso to order men to worke upon the same in all workes as they are severally apted accordingly; as allso to pportion the same workes and wages equally in all cases." They were "allowed to take Pynes for ye same house for boards upon ye Wigwam playne, and Oakes from other spots." A record of February 18, 1638, narrates that "a weekly meeting at Joseph Kingsberies' house became altogether spent in agitacon concerning ye meeting house." An agreement was made after much discussion "yt there shalbe alowed unto such as doe fell Pynes of 2 foote, over at ye carse, six pence and for Oakes of ye same thickness, eight pence."

Timber having been cut, it was ordered May 30, 1638, "by ye maior pte yt ye metting house shalbe sett up in ye place wher it now lyeth, or upon some pte of ye waist ground neer therunto as it was left for yt purpose."

July 6, 1638. "It was condescended for loveing satisfaction unto some neighbors on ye east side of ye little Rivr yt" the site should be changed.

November 5, 1638. It was recorded that "Wheras Tho. Fisher whoe undertooke ye meeting house dieth before it was finished. It is agreed yt John Roper, Tho. Bayes, and Jos. Kingsbery shall estimate what was left undone of ye agremt made with him, as also other worke done by others, interniscuously, with ye finishing thereof, wthin ye said house to be soe distinguished yt ye Towne may beare ye one and ye wedowe beare ye other accordingly."

In the month of August, two men were "empowered to mowe, gather up and breng home thatch for ye meeting house," a method of roofing in vogue till some years later. Many inventories of the period contain an item of thatching tools.

The church building erected at this time is the same mentioned by W. D. Northend in his Bay Colony. It served as meeting house and Town Hall for about twenty years, when, having become too small for the growing community it was replaced by a larger. That the new edifice was also used for secular as well as sacred purpose place be made secure for it in ye rooffe of ye new was agreed yt ye Towne amunition shalbe layed up, and ye place be made secure for it in ye rooffe of ye new meeting house over ye east gallerie." Precautions against fire were not neglected. The same entry continues: "Whereas it doe apeare the Towne lader that doe belonge to ye meeting house and have beene mad oncapable of sarvic in respect of breaking and loosing out the staves which tend to the damage of the towne; it is theirfore ordered; that whosoever shall remove or cause to be removed the aforesaid lader excpt in case of fire upon sune house shall forfeit to the use of the Towne for every such offense the sune of five shillings."

On December 29, 1640, the Town Fathers, John Roper among them, decided to establish a "fre schoole." It was arranged that "Twentie pounds p: ann. at the least, shall be the settled recompense of the school master, for the space of seven years next ensuing. Each inhabitant who has male children or servants shall pay for each, five shillings p: ann." If this failed to raise the twenty pounds, the deficit was to be rated. Later, land was ordered to be set apart for the "fre schoole," not less than forty, nor more than sixty acres. On these conditions, Jacob Farrar agreed to "teach to read English and the Accidence (Grammar) and to write, and the knowledge and art of Arithmeticke and the rules and practice thereof."

The meetings by which the town was governed were held at intervals of one, two and sometimes three months, and the name of John Roper generally appears in the list of those present, till 1644. On February 28, 1641, it was recorded that "on this day John Roper being destitute of corn, craved the privilege of selling boards, Granted with license to take more timber." In February, 1642, five and a half acres of upland were granted him for cultivation; in the same month, 1644, four acres of woodland, and on February 10, 1650, six acres of meadow.

The legislation of the General Court of Charlestown was occasionally so paternal as to modify materially the home atmosphere and daily employments of the colonists. They were, however, so fully in accord with the spirit of the law givers that they accepted without demur their suggestions. In 1639 they legislated against the wearing of lace and other vain ornament as tending to the nourishing of pride, and exhaustive of men's estates. In 1655 a law was passed that "all hands not necessarily employed on other occasions, as women, girls and boys, shall, and are hereby enjoined, to spin according to their skill, and ability"; also that the select men overlook and assess the spinning, each spinner to spin every year, for thirty weeks, three pounds a week of linen, cotton or wool, under penalty of twelve pence for every pound short." So resolute were they to enforce this law, that by one of its provisions, each town was divided into districts and an inspector appointed to report any delinquency.

In 1645 the general alarm caused by the forays of the Pequot Indians gave rise to an order that "In regard of the great danger of Concord, Sudbury and Dedham wilbe exposed unto, being inland townes and but thinly peopled, it is ordered that no man now inhabiting and settled in any of the said Townes, (whether married or single) shall remove to any other towne without the allowance of a magistrate or other select men of that towne untill it shall please God to settle peace againe or some other way of safety to the said townes, where upon the said Cort or the Council of the Comonwealth shall set the inhabitants of the said townes at their former liberty."

Notwithstanding these war alarms, the family seems to have been fairly prosperous. The Dedham Vital Records show that John, Jun., and Alice remained some years with their parents. On September 13, 1639, she was admitted to the membership of the church mentioned above. As no reference is made to the admission of her husband at that time, it is inferred that this event did not take place till he was constituted a freeman, two years later, church membership being one of the requirements for that privilege.

The births of Rachel, March 18, 1639; of Hannah, April 2, 1642, and of the twins, Ephraim (our direct ancestor) and Nathaniel, December 23, 1644, are given here, as is also the death of Rachel, July 16, 1641. If this entry is correct, another child must have been named for the lost one, as was so commonly done in those days, for Rachel, a daughter of John and Alice Roper, was married in Lancaster, 1661. No birth record of such a child, however, is found, and it seems probable, from comparison of all available dates, that the statement is an error. It is inferred that John and Alice moved to Charlestown early in 1645, and that Ruth, afterward the wife of Dea. John Haynes of Sudbury, and another daughter were born there, making a family of eight. Their marriages afford a side view of the occupations of the times. Alice, the elder of the two girls born in England, was wedded to Thomas Adams, a chimney sweep; Hannah to Thomas Barber, a cooper, and Rachel, to Archelaus Courser, a potter, from Boston. The possession of a trade was encouraged, but every man was to some extent a farmer. Judge Sewell records in his diary that he himself had, on that day "drawn with a pair of oxen, some oak logs to the wharf," and other entries show that he labored diligently with his hands. The occupation of farming was then a prime necessity, for food supplies from the mother country were uncertain, and provisions for high and low alike had to be wrested from the soil whereon they lived. A taste for the business seems to be a Roper inheritance, coming perhaps from the Garden of Eden, in almost an unbroken line even unto this day. Let him who doubts consult the family statistics and observe the preponderance of tillers of the soil.

The most careful search has failed to reveal anything concerning the later years of the life of John Roper, Sen., or of his death. That he remained in Dedham after John, Jun., settled in Lancaster, is proved by a deed (Boston Early Probate Records of Norfolk County) wherein Achelaus Courser and Rachel his wife convey land to Edward Drinker of Boston, July 16, 1664. To this John Roper of Dedham is witness. It is inferred that he died soon after this date, and that the Courser family went to live in the Dedham home, as the births of four of the children are recorded in the town, the last in 1670. After this time the grandmother probably resided with John in Lancaster, where she is found at the 1676 massacre.

There is no record showing any intercourse with Walter's family after his final settlement in the northern part of the State. It is not unlikely that such intercourse existed, however, since Alice lived in his vicinity, with her second and third husbands. Indeed, there is nowhere found any direct statement that Walter was the son of John of Dedham, as so often occurs in the case of John,

Jun. Still, there can be no reasonable doubt. In the early years of their life in America, the two families were so intimately associated around Boston, that authorities dispute the ownership of the children, members of both families having been baptized in Dedham. John was two years the senior and Walter naturally falls into place as the brother next younger. The same names are perpetuated in the descendants of each, but no legend of Walter's family is found among the Sterling or Rutland branches. This is not to be wondered at, when we consider that our entire stock of family tradition comes to us through a ten-year-old boy, and that whatever he had known before that age suffered the shock of massacre, utter orphanage, and miserable captivity. None but the most startling events could be expected to stand forth on such a background.

A species of homesickness for the "Norfolk Broads" of merry England, where as a boy he had probably been semi-aquatic, may have led Walter to locate in the maritime portion of the colony. As has been stated, he was early drawn in that direction and found the Plum Island marshes so much to his liking that he invested in a tract which descended to his grandson, Benjamin Dutch. He resided for some years in Salisbury and Andover, but in 1666 became a fixture in Ipswich. Like John, he was a carpenter and like all others of the time, a farmer. From Rev. F. P. Waters it is learned that the Walter Roper homestead was the second above the Old Cemetery toward the Railroad crossing on High street. His vote is recorded in Ipswich, 1679. In March, 1680, he was released from training without pay. He died July 15, 1680, in the sixty-eighth year of his age. His will mentions his wife, Susan, five children and six grandchildren. The place and date of Susan's death are not known. The supposed order of the children is as follows:

Mary (baptized Dedham, 1639), m. Robert Dutch.
Nathaniel, — — —, d. at sea, Sept. 29, 1685.
Benjamin, — —, killed at Bloody Brook, Sept. 18, 1675.
John, born 1649, m. Anna Caldwell.
Elizabeth. History unknown.
Sarah, m. — Sparks.

The date of Mary's marriage with Robert Dutch is uncertain; possibly about the year 1670. Their children were (Ipswich Records):

Elizabeth Dutch, b. Feb. 11, 1673, m. Isaac Rindge.
Susanna Dutch, b. July 13, 1675.
John Dutch, b. June 17, 1677.
Benjamin Dutch, b. — — — 1679.
Nathaniel Dutch, b. Feb. 18, 1681.
Hannah Dutch, b. — — 1685.

The records of this family have not been followed. Any information concerning their descendants will be received with pleasure. The name of Dutch appears very frequently in the beautiful old cemetery of the town. The first grave at the right of the entrance gate is that of Benjamin.

Of Nathaniel, the second child, this statement is found in the Early Records: "Nathaniel, son of Walter Roper, died on a ship bound for the Barbadoes, September 29, 1685; he made his affirmation wherein he prayed that his brother John have his estate and charged him to pay his debts." The population of the northern coast towns was doubtless largely seafaring then as now. A heavy trade with the West Indies was carried on, and it is not unlikely that Nathaniel had money invested in the trip.

The sad history of Benjamin, the third child, appears in the next chapter. With his brother-in-law, Robert Dutch, he enlisted in the company known to this day as the Flower of Essex, and perished at Bloody Brook, near Deerfield, Mass., September 18, 1675.

John, the fourth member of Walter's family, born about 1649, occupies more space in the history of the town, although nothing is known of his early life and little of his later years. When over forty he married Anna Caldwell, born August 23, 1661. As he had received his portion of his father's estate, and all of Nathaniel's property, it is not surprising to find the statement that he died possessed of a very considerable amount of this world's goods. He owned several houses in Ipswich, had rights on the "common" and land for tillage. His will was made five days before his death, and, after some legacies including that of the salt marsh (Plum Island) given to Benjamin Dutch, bequeathed everything to Anna, his wife, who survived him twelve years. The only record in which she appears afterward is to the effect that a seat was assigned her in the meeting house, March 15, 1720. This was in conformity with a custom of the time requiring that widows and unmarried elderly women should occupy a place near the front of the church, the reason of which is difficult to comprehend.

Not far from the grave of Benjamin Dutch, already mentioned, is a small sunken headstone of slate, with every mark of decrepit old age, bearing this inscription:

*Here lies what was mortal of John Roper,
who died Nov. 17 1709, in 60 yrs. of his age.*

The surrounding space is occupied by the graves of various persons, showing that no care was taken at that time to have kindred laid to rest side by side. At a distance of perhaps fifty feet is found the grave of Anna, wife of John Roper, who died September 4, 1721.

Everything in this portion of the Ipswich burial ground shows what is, for America, extreme antiquity, protected by reverent, judicious care. No more beautiful place could be imagined. From the entrance the land slopes almost imperceptibly upward to the foot of a bluff so abrupt that steps are required for its ascent. It is terraced to the top, each terrace of sufficient width and depth for burial purposes, and laid out in modern style. Snowy marble gleams white against the green background of each higher elevation, while abundant flowers, wall above wall, add their sweet influence to hallow this unique spot. Eighty-six steps bring one to the summit, where are seen the blue ocean beyond the white sand dunes, the Essex river winding its devious way thither, and the beautiful country, miles upon miles round about. Probably all of Walter's family sleep their last long sleep at the foot of this bluff, except the two boys, Nathaniel, whose body must have been committed to the care of yonder sea, and Benjamin, who lies with the Flower of Essex, far from kindred, but embalmed with them in the hearts of thousands till History shall be no more.

CHAPTER IV.

Lancaster.

As there is neither family tradition nor diary of the lives of John and Alice, we are left wholly to conjecture in regard to the causes of their breaking up the Charlestown home. We may, without much effort of the imagination, join the family council where the grown daughters now take their part in the deliberations upon the Lancaster movement. We may likewise imagine that friends of the family, and probably John himself, had seen the "fair and goodly cuntrye" described in the early records of that town, and yearned to go in and possess the land. Once a pioneer always a pioneer, in heart at least. "Mother and the girls" may have clung tenaciously to the comforts and pleasures of life in the little metropolis, but yielded with what grace they could muster to the inevitable.

An entry in the Lancaster Town Book, apparently dated 1654, gives a property valuation of 100*£* os. od. to the estate of John Roper, but he would hardly have been permitted to hold so much land as this sum represents, before accepting the required conditions. His signature to the covenant is dated March 22, 1656. This agreement was similar in character to that already quoted from the Dedham Town Book, but much longer. It became necessary from the first to guard against absentee landlordism. Many citizens of the coast towns were desirous of possessions here, but if they failed to build, fence and cultivate within one year from the date of the grant, they forfeited their holdings. An interesting point is an article on "Equal Lotts." The first division gave to each and all the same amount of land; the second, according to estates. This was done "partly to keepe the towne from scatering to farr, and partly out of charitie and Respect to men of meaner estate."

An entry made about two months after his arrival shows how some of John's time was occupied.

May 26, 1656. "We, whose names are hereunto put, being chose by Concord and Lancaster to lay out the cuntrie highway betwixt the said townes, within the bounds of Lancaster, have acted and concluded that the cuntrie highway shall goe as followeth;" . . . This document is signed for Lancaster by John Roper and Ralph Houghton; for Concord, George Wheeler and John Smalley. A later entry sets the width of this road at five rods, locates it more definitely within the village, and continues it "soe, beyond all the Lotts, into the woods." The last section, as it now stands, begins at the Atherton bridge road, and runs west at right angles with South Lancaster street, over Roper's brook, up the hill to the school house.

The second division of land promised in the Covenant took place three years later. It is recorded that "On Monday, the 5 ffebruarie, 1659, the towne met at the house of Major Willard to consider of a way to sett forward a 2 devision of medow." There was much regulating of the matter, "which being finished, and all the orders aforesaid agreed on, and the Lord being sought unto for his blessing upon his owne ordinance, Lotts were taken as followeth without any disturbance or distraction." John Roper has twenty-one against his name, Gamaliel Beaman, one of whose line was afterward so marked a character in Sterling life, has twenty-two, and "Mordicai Muke Load" (MacLeod), twenty-three, which figures probably represented acres.

On February 2, 1662, Goodman Prescott, Goodman Wilder and Goodman Roper were chosen to lay out a "town way." It was the first over the George Hill range, and now turns from the main road, by the school house. On November 26, 1664, Prescott, Roper and Houghton were empowered to "view the Highway Crosse the neke to quasaponekin and to lay it out if they see cause." On February 3, 1667, twelve acres were granted Goodman John Roper for damages sustained in extending the width of the road previously mentioned, to five rods. On the same day, Major Willard, John Prescott, Thomas Wilder, John Roper and Ralph Houghton were chosen townsmen (select men) for a year.

Papers in the Middlesex Court files, dated July 26, 1667, reveal one item of business in hand that year. They are connected with the case of the administrator of Steven Day's Estate vs. John Roper.

"To the marshall general or his deputy, or to the Constable of Lancaster or his deputy.

"You are hereby required in his Majestie's name to attach the goods or in want thereof, the person of John Roper, Senr. of Lancaster and take bond of him to the value of 250*£*. with sufficient surety or sureties for his appearance att the next County Court holden at Cambridge upon the first day of October next. There and then to answer to the complaint of William Bordman of Cambridge to an action of the case for denying of the said Bordman full and true possession of the house and Lands that is att present in the possession of the said Roper in the town of Lancaster which sometime was in the possession of Solomon Johnson Senr., now of Marlborough, and after that, in the hand of Mr. Stephen Day of Cambridge, which house and lands with the appurtenances and priviledges thereto belonging, doth by due and true right belong unto said William Bordman with all the damages about the same and hereof you are to make a true return under your hand and not to fayle. Dated this 26 of July, 1667.

By the Court,

Samuel Green.

Endorsed.

"I have attached the possessions of John Ropper, and taken security by the consent of the plaintiff, his own bond.

Edward Mitchell, Marshall.

"Verdict.

"In the case depending betweene William Bordman and John Roper, we find for the defendent. Costs of Court."

Accompanying the above is a copy of the town's grant of 1653, and this certificate:

"This may certify any man unto whom these presents may com, that about 9 ys. ago, Mr. Day of Cambridge laying claim to a lot sometime in the possession of Goodman Johnson of Marlborough, the town was willing he should possess prvided he would subscribe to the orders of the Town which he readily consented to and subscribed his hand to our Town book wherein was this article of the Town upon Record. That every one bound themselves to build, plant land and inhabit within one whole year after the acceptance of their lots, and pay 5*l* to the Town, and hereunto Mr. Day subscribed his hand Mar. 15, 1653. But he never came to inhabit, nor do anything about building or breaking land unto this day, nor bear any publick charge, but about 6 or 7 years ago, Goodman Roper who sometime lived at Charlestown, desired to come to live among us, and had a liking to that Lot, being Mr. Day had forfeited it by not keeping covenant with ye Town. Yet notwithstanding, the Town had so much respect to Mr. Day that they allowed him that Goodman Roper should pay to Mr. Day what buildings, fencings, &c, might be worth, which both Mr. Day and Goodman Roper consented unto. They made choise of us whose hands are subscribed to judg betwixt them what it may be worth that is to say the building and fencing as aforesaid and it was judged that Goodman Roper should pay 15s. to Mr. Day.

"Lancaster this 9: 8 m. 1662.

"Witnesses, John Prescott, Ralph Houghton.

"Sworn in Court 19:8m, 1667 by ye pties subscribed as attests. Thomas Danforth, Re."

The lot in question was that upon the east side of which the George Hill school house now stands.

In the year 1670, sixteen acres of the Johnson lot were deeded by John Roper to Archelaus Courser, the potter from Boston, who, in 1661, had married Rachel, probably the first daughter of John and Alice, born in America. After the massacre of 1676, Courser seems to have taken his family back to Boston, as he died there in 1679. A son, John Courser, sold the land to Nathaniel Wilder, after which nothing farther has yet been discovered concerning the Courser family.

The halcyon days of our family must have come between the years 1660 and 1676. At least five of the children had married, no doubt happily. It is evident that their hearts clave tenaciously to their grandparents' home, for four of Rachel's children are registered in Dedham, and the first of Ephraim's, born November 26, 1672, soon after which he must have moved to Lancaster. John was a busy, prosperous man, well able to promote the fortunes of his children. It may be as truly said of families as of countries, that they are happy who have no history—no material for any; no great sorrows, if none but the common joys of life here below. There is little in the records of this period that deserves special mention.

But in 1675, a little cloud no bigger than a man's hand, arose in the South where King Philip dwelt in forest depths. The cloud grew, and its approaching shadow made dim the sunshine of all the region round about. The second war was on. The General Court, in its session that year, sought to know the cause of their affliction by the hand of God, and issued the following opinion:

"Whereas there is manifest pride openly appearing amongst us, in that long hair, like women's hair is worn by some men, either their own, or others' hair made into periwigs, and by some women wearing borders of hair, and their cutting, curling and immodest laying out their hair, especially among the younger sort, this Court doth declare this ill custom is offensive to them. The evil of pride in apparel, both for costliness in the poorer sort, and vain new strange fashions both in poor and rich with naked breasts and arms, or, as it were, pinioned, with the addition of superstitious ribbons, &c, the County Courts are charged to attend to this grievance."

On September 18, 1675, the first blow fell upon this devoted family that was, henceforward, to know every bitterness possible to humanity either in life or death.

Benjamin, the son of Walter Roper, now of Ipswich, was in the company commanded by Capt. Lothrop, of Beverly, Massachusetts. Sheldon, in his history of Deerfield, says of this officer: "He was doubtless brave; reckless he must have been. These two qualities united in action, are simply foolhardiness, and Lothrop must be held responsible for the young lives entrusted to his care. On that fatal morning, the Essex men joined by eighteen from Deerfield, had set forth gaily from the camp near that town where they had been halted for rest, after their march from the coast, westward."

Their path lay through a swamp where the soldiers saw wild grapes hanging upon the vines. Some of them placed their arms in the convoy carts, and strayed into the morass to gather them. "Here the Indians were lying, their painted bodies indistinguishable from the marsh and the first warning of danger was the volley that cut down Lothrop and most of his men. The survivors were instantly surrounded and shot down in detail," Benjamin with the rest. Here also was the husband of his sister Mary, Robert Dutch, of Ipswich, who received a ball in the head, was mauled with a hatchet and left for dead. Several hours afterward he was discovered still alive, and restored to consciousness. "On the following morning, Sunday, September 19, 1675. Capts. Treat and Mosely marched forth to bury their dead comrades on the field of slaughter where they fell. A spot was selected twenty-five rods south of the morass. Scouts were sent out and sentinels posted to avoid a surprise. Parties were detailed to gather the dead, and workmen to dig a common grave" by the tranquil stream that bears to this day the name of Bloody Brook. A dispatch received by the Governor September 22, 1675, reported that "Capt. Lothrop had forty-six men with others belonging to the carriages so there were sixty-four bodies." In his history of Massachusetts, Austin says of this event, "There was scarcely a family in Essex which did not lose a member, and that member its pride and hope." Of one after another in a long list, it is recorded that he "perished at Bloody Brook with the Flower of Essex."

Up to the November following Benjamin's death at Deerfield, the colonists had acted mainly on the defensive. At that time the three leading colonies united and sent what was for them a large force against the enemy in December. The savages were much depressed by their defeat at the hands of these soldiers, but with the New Year, 1676, the chiefs gathered up what was left, abandoned their southerly haunts, and withdrew into the country of the Nipmucks of which Wachusett mountain in the present town of Princeton, was the rendezvous."

There had been much apprehension in the minds of the little colony at Lancaster, and this movement of the allied Indians did not tend to allay their anxieties. The enemy was now at their very door. In the gloom that settled upon the town, men's hearts failed them for fear. In spite of their best efforts at road building, only the poorest means of communication existed between the coast settlements and this handful of people, lonely and remote in the wilderness. Swollen streams were spanned by treacherous bridges. They could not abandon the town, for their entire earthly possessions were invested there. Frenzied petitions for protection were sent to the General Court. Nourse says: "Of the plan for the destruction of Lancaster in all its details even to the very day assigned for its accomplishment, the colonial authorities were fully advised, and yet, so far as any records show, they did almost nothing to ward off, or meet the blow." Troops sent to disperse the savages pursued them as far as Marlborough, and then, being out of provisions, returned to Boston. Taking advantage of their departure, the scattered bands of Indians effected a juncture and together fell upon Lancaster on the morning of February 10, 1676.

As has been stated, the General Court had been kept informed of the movements and even the plans of the foe. Through the efforts of Eliot, the apostle to the Indians, the Natick tribe remained friendly, and two of their young men, Job and James, had been very successful as spies. "On February 9 at 10 p. m. they again reached the English at Cambridge, exhausted and fainting, after traveling eighty miles on snowshoes through the pathless wilderness." Their report at last roused the authorities. Major Gookin, the commander, rose and dressed and called up Mr. Danforth, one of the Council living near. They dispatched a post to Marlborough, Concord and Lancaster, ordering troops to surround the latter town. By daybreak the posts were at Marlborough. Captain Wadsworth got forty men together and marched with all speed to Lancaster, ten miles distant. The bridge was on fire, the planks torn up, but they got over, beat off the enemy, and reached the Stevens garrison house. Only a bridge and a little strip of land separated this from the garrison house of Rev. Joseph Rowlandson, pastor. These houses, so indispensable at that time, were well calculated for defense. Built of heavy logs, lined with brick or flat stones, they were measurably secure until set on fire, and forty-two of the inhabitants—among them, the wife and daughter of Ephraim Roper—had taken refuge in this one on which the savages concentrated the attack. Mrs. Rowlandson's story of the battle and of her captivity following is our best authority here. She says: "Some in our house were fighting for their lives, while others were wallowing in their blood, the house being on fire over our heads and the bloody savages were standing ready to bury the tomahawk in our heads if we stirred out. Now we could hear mothers and children crying out, 'Lord what shall we do?' I took my children, and one of my sisters, hers, to go out and leave the house; but as soon as we made our appearance at the door the Indians fired so fast that the bullets rattled against the house, as if one had taken a handful of stones and thrown them so that we were forced to give back." The flames drove them forth, however. Mrs. Rowlandson was wounded in the side and two of her children were put to death. "My eldest sister being yet in the house," she continues, "seeing Indians hauling mothers one way and children another, and some wallowing in their blood, and being told that her son William was dead and that I was wounded, she exclaimed, 'Lord, let me die with them!'" No sooner had she said this than she was struck with a bullet and fell dead across the threshold. The Indians now laid hold on us, pulling me one way and the children another, saying, "Come go along with us." I told them that they would kill me. They said if I was willing to go with them they would not hurt me," and this promise was faithfully kept during her entire captivity. Her husband, Rev. Joseph Rowlandson, was in Boston at the time of the attack with one of his parishioners, endeavoring to procure soldiers for the defense of the town now in ruins. He immediately began his efforts for her release. A curious letter is preserved in the records of this time. It was sent by the Indians in answer to a proposition from the General Court for the release of prisoners, the pastor's wife among them, and was received by the English on April 12. "We now give answer by this one man, but if you like my answer send one more man besides this one, Tom Nepanet, and send with all true heart and with all your mind by two men, because you know and we know your heart great sorrowful with crying for your lost many many hundred men and all your house and all your land and woman child and cattle as all your thing that you have lost and on your backside stand.

(Signed) "SAM, Sachem,
"KUTQUEN, and
"QUANOWHIT, Sagamore.

"PETER JETHRO, Scribe."

The sum of £20 was accepted for the ransom of Mrs. Rowlandson, who was delivered to her friends at Redemption Rock in the present town of Princeton. This rock is so near the highway that the inscription upon its surface can be read without leaving the carriage.

In her book describing the attack and her captivity, she states that only one man escaped alive from the garrison house. Nourse, in his "Early Annals of Lancaster," gives the names of those who perished there, including Mrs. Priscilla Roper, wife of Ephraim, and his daughter, Priscilla, aged three. He states that Ephraim himself was the man who escaped. There is no trustworthy account of the means by which this was effected. The more common tradition, both in Sterling and Rutland, is that as he was fleeing into the forest with a little child concealed under his arm, the child was killed by a shot. This seems improbable, for the savages filled the surrounding woods, while the Stevens garrison house, at that moment defended by the Marlborough soldiers, was close at hand and would be the more natural refuge. Whither he went is equally uncertain. His name does not appear on the petition for relief, sent to the General Court late in February. Wife and child were gone, and there was little left to live for.

He next appears among the Colonial troops sent against Philip's band, with which he and many another comrade doubtless had long scores to settle. They were commanded by Captain Turner of Boston, whose military career was checkered by the religious opinions of the period. Early in the war he had offered his service at the head of a well-drilled company of volunteers, but was refused a commission because he was an Anabaptist. The defense of the colony could not be entrusted to such dangerous persons. By May, however, the government was in such straits that his aid was sought. He replied that he knew not what he could do. His men were disbanded and scattered but he would gladly help in any way possible. Through March and April, the towns in the immediate vicinity of Lancaster were harried and others dismally awaited their turn on the bloody program. But the Indians, too, had suffered sorely, and in May drew off westward. Captain Benjamin Church, in his war record, says of Philip: "His next kenneling place was at the Falls of the Connecticut, and there, some time after, (May 18, 1676) Captain Turner found him, came upon him by night, killed him, a great many men, and frightened many more into the river that were hurled down the falls and drowned." A "great and notable slaughter" had indeed befallen the enemy, but they gathered themselves up and attacked the whites on their return march, Philip himself in command. Thirty-eight of the company were killed, Captain Turner among them. His name is perpetuated in that of the beautiful falls where his body was afterward found.

Whether Ephraim came out unwounded from this expedition is unknown. His first care must have been to find his parents, neither of whom is mentioned in the accounts of that terrible February day, nor any member of the family of his sister Rachel, Mrs. Courser. It is possible that her husband, owing to the widespread terror, had taken them all to his former home in Boston for safety. His search would reveal to him that sad story of his father's death.

Some homes suffered but little on the morning of February 10, as will be seen by the petition to the Court, given below. It does not require much imagination to bring before us the scenes of the days following; the waiting in sickening dread for the assurance that the enemy was really gone from their midst; the counting over of parents, brothers, sisters butchered or borne away into hideous captivity; the venturing forth to gaze upon the charred, mangled bodies in and around the ruins of the Rowlandson garrison house; the burial of their dead, and the return to the desolate fireside, if so be they had shelter left; the lying down to rest, not knowing what midnight horrors might befall them, and the waking to a new day of grim, gaunt misery.

On February 24, 1676, orders were issued by the Council to the Constables of Concord and Sudbury requiring them to impress eight carts in each town to bring away "such persons in Lancaster as being bereaved by the late hand of god are disenabled from continuing there." The carts were not forthcoming, however. The following is dated -

LANCASTER, March 11, 1675-76.

To the Honerd Govenor and Counsell:

The humble petition of the poor, destressed people of Lancaster humbly sheweth that sence the enemy mad such sad and dismall havocke amongst our dear ffrinds & Brethernen & we that are left who have our lives for a prey sadly sencable of Gods judgmts upon us, this with the destresse we are now in dus embolden us to present our humble Requests to yor Honors hoping our Condisions may be considered by you & our Requests find exceptance with you. our stat is very deplorable in our Incapacity to subsist, as to Remove away we cannot the enemy has so Incompased us, otherwise for want of help our catle being the most of them caried away by the barberous heathen and to stay disenabled for want of food. the Towns people are Generally gon who felt the Judgmt but light and had theyre catle left them with theyre estats, but we many of us heare in this prison, have not bread to last us on mongth & our other provisions spent & gon. for the generallyty our Town is drawn into two Garisons wherein are by the Good favors of yor Honrs eighteen soulders which we gladly mayntayn so long as anything lasts & if yor Honrs should call them of, we are seartaynly a bayt for the enemy if God do not wonderfully prevent. therefore we hop as God has mad you fathers over us so you will have a fathers pittty to us & extend your care over us who are yor poor destressed subjects. We are sorowful to leave the place, but hopelesse to keep it unlesse mayntayned by the Cuntrey. it troubles our sperits to give any Incuridgmt to the enemy or leave anything for them to promote their wicked designe, yet better save our lives than lose Life and Estat both. we are in danger emenent the enemy leying Above us, nay on both sids of us, as dus playingly apeare, our womens cris dus dayly Increase beand expression which dus not only fill our ears but our hearts full of Greefe, which makes us humbly Request yor Honrs to send a Gard of men and that if you please so command we may have carts About fourteen will remove the whool, eight of which has been presed long at Sudbury but nevyr came for want of a small gard of men. the whooll, that is, all that are in the on Garison Kept in Major Willards house which is all from yor Honrs most humble servants & suplyants.

To this portion of the petition eight names are signed in behalf of those in the "on Garison house." A second part sets forth that "The other on Garison are in the like destresse and soe humbly desire yor like pittty and ffatherly car, having widows and many ffatherlesse children. the Numbr of Carts to Carey away this garison is twenty Carts.

"Yor Honrs Humble pettisioners."

Among the twelve names signed here are those of "John Rooper" and "Widow Rooper," the latter, no doubt, that of his mother, the widow of John of Dedham. The entire document, including names, is in the hand-writing of one person.

The next scene of the Lancaster tragedy is taken from the Massachusetts archives. It is a military report over the name of Simon Willard, one of the earliest signers of their Town Covenant, and at the date above mentioned, a major in the Colonial troops.

"I went to Concord and devided the troope committed unto me from Essex and from Northfolke into three pts—one to garde the carts presed from Sudbury, one pt. for the carts presed from Concord, both to Lancaster, & one pt. for the carts that went from Charleston and Wattertowne that went volintiers or wear hiered. * * *

When I came ther (Concord) I inquired how it was with Lancaster. the answer was they weare in distresse. I psently sent 40 horse theiyr to fetch away corne. * * * the 27 of this instant I went from Chellmsfoord to Concord agayne. when I came ther, the troopers that I sent to Lancaster last had broght awaye all the people ther but had left about 50 bushells of wheat and Indian corne. * * * Concord & Chellmsfoord looke every daye to be fiered and wold have more men but know not how to keepe them nor paye them."

It will be observed that the "volintiers" were from Charlestown and Watertown, the places where John Roper was so well known years before. It is not unlikely that his old friends were exerting themselves in behalf of him who was soon to pass beyond the need of human help, but whose hapless family would require every care that compassion could suggest. As stated in the petition, the Indians were lurking not only "above but on both sides." A soldier from Watertown was killed by them not far from the two garrison houses a few days after the massacre, and John Roper, upon March 26, the very day upon which the town was abandoned. Nourse says of him: "He was a man respected of his neighbors, and of good standing in the church for he was chosen one of the selectmen in 1664."

There is nothing to show what disposition was made of his body. It is most likely that a hasty burial was made upon the spot. The great difficulty of procuring carts for the transportation of the living, with the corn to be taken along for their food as well as to put it out of the reach of the savages, must have precluded all possibility of carrying their dead with them. And so two Roper widows joined the melancholy procession that filed away into the forest under the protection of soldiers, March 26, 1676. One after another of the heavily laden carts takes its slow way across the desolate clearing, where but a few days before had been a busy, thriving community. The last one disappears into the woods and Lancaster is wiped out. How appalling must the future have looked to these two widows and to many another like them, as they crawled along the weary way to Concord! Find if you can a more grievous sight!

On page 119 Nourse says: "Few of the refugees but had relatives or friends in the lower towns, and in their banishment they become widely scattered." Alice, the widow of John, probably did not return to Lancaster at its rebuilding. On April 14, 1681, she was married in Charlestown to John Dickinson, who died in Salisbury December 30, 1683. In his will he mentions her with her son-in-law and grandson, Samuel Adams, son of Alice, the eldest daughter, born in England. In the year 1684 she was married to William Allen. Her death occurred in 1687, aged 73. Ephraim Roper presented the account at the settlement of the estate. In her will she mentions her daughter, Ruth "hains" (of whom no mention is found previous to this time), her granddaughter, Sary Adhams, wife of Thomas Adhams, and Samuel Adhams, and some heirs of three deceased children. The will was witnessed by Benjamin and Rachel Allen.

Until her marriage with Mr. Dickinson, Alice may have lived in Charlestown, her former home, and the aged mother was doubtless her care until her death, which could not be long delayed after their terrible experience. Ruth also would naturally be with her until her own marriage to Dea. John Haynes of Sudbury,

June 19, 1683. Ephraim seems to have remained in Concord, perhaps through the influence of his soldier comrades. There, on August 7, 1676, in the popular frenzy against all Indians, an atrocious murder had been committed in the woods near "Hurtleberry Hill," wherein three squaws and three children had perished. The perpetrators—four soldiers—confessed either to the crime or to having been present. The even-handed justice of the Court appears in the outcome. Daniel Goble, the ringleader, and Stephen, possibly a brother, were executed September 26, 1676, on the same scaffold, with "One-Eyed-John," the chief, who had been foremost in the attacks upon Lancaster and the neighboring towns. The other two soldiers, having taken no active part in the crime, had their sentences commuted. On November 20, 1677, Ephraim Roper married Hannah, the widow of Stephen Goble, and the vital statistics of Concord show the births of the following children to Ephraim and Hannah (Goble) Roper:

Priscilla, b. February 5, 1679.

Ruth, b. January 7, 1681.

Elizabeth, b. January 17, 1683; killed, with her parents, by Indians, September 11, 1697.

Bathsheba, b. — no date.

Ephraim, b. — no date; carried away captive, September 11, 1697.

As soon as peace was made with the Indians, the inhabitants of the devastated towns desired to begin their rebuilding. The petition for permission to return to Lancaster is as follows:

"To the honored County Court sitting at Cambridge, October 7, 1679:

"Ye humble petition of those whose names are here underwritten ye Inhabitants of Lancaster before or removall from thence by reason of ye late warres in or owne and others behalfe, ye pprietors of ye said place as followeth :

"Whereas there was an order made the Last honord generall Cort yt places deserted should not be agayne Inhabited till the people first make application to the Govnor & Council or to the County Cort, within whose jurisdiction they be, for a committee to order matters concerning ye place as in the said Law is expressed, wee yor petitioners wth divers others purposing (if ye Lord please) to returne to Lancaster from whence wee have been scattered doe humbly request this Cort that they will be pleased to nominate & appoint an able & discreet Committee for that end, who may with all convenient speed attend the same Business, that soe wee may pceed to settle the place with comfort & encouragement & yor petitioners shall pray for the Lord's gracious psence with you in all yor administrations."

To this portion of the petition nine names are signed, after which is added, in a different handwriting :

"And the persones wee under (writ) doe nomenat, if this honored Court se cause to aprove of them, is Decon Ward of Marlborough, leutenant haines of Sutbery and cornit Woodes of Concord."

The "honored court" did not "se cause to aprove" these persons, but granted leave to rebuild their homes. and the town has records of births in 1679 and 1680. Ephraim Roper probably moved his family thither from Concord early in 1684, as the absentee list of that year has no name belonging to our family but that of Archelaus Courser, the husband of Rachel. This seems to show that the heirs still held property in Lancaster.

The struggle for existence in the first years of re-settlement is set forth in a petition for release from taxes, dated February, 1681 :

“The petition of the poore inhabitants of Lancaster humbly Sheweth, That whereas your poore petitioners by the late Indian warr, were much Ruined, our houses and other buildings and fences burned and most of our substance wasted and som of our Children slaine and som caried into Captivity by the enemy and som never Returned, and we with the Rest forced to fly for our lives and to leave our places of living to seek shelter in other townes where we could, And have gone through many straits and difficulties upon that acount so that few townes in the cuntrie have suffered the like. And now through the good hand of god about 17 or 18 families have againe Returned with a desire to rebuild the plantation againe and through many difficulties by Reson of our povertie are about building and fencing that soe they may provid bread for their families and not be troublesom and burdensom to other townes which of necesitie must have bene If we had Continued where we were and this year the honoured tresurer sent his warant for a Cuntrie Rate. And tho’ it be but a little, yet to our greife we must say we are not able to pay it. Theirefore your poore petitioners humbly crave this Honoured Court to Remit this Rate and grant an exemption from Cuntrie Rats for the future for som years, soe many as the Honoured Court may judge meet.”

An exemption was granted for 1681 and 1682. A petition addressed to the General Court, dated September 10, 1684, prays for legislation to enforce the payment of church dues of absentees, but in process of time, they all settled down to plowing, planting, ridding their neighborhood of wild beasts and healing the wounds inflicted in 1676.

Their security was short lived, for, even before the declaration of King William's War, 1689, the savages held in leash by the French in Canada, were let loose upon them, and although William of Orange was upon the throne of England, the strife between the English and French possessions in America bore a baneful harvest. The border towns were in mortal terror. Under date of August, 1688, an officer reports:

"* * * So next day I went through Groton and Lancaster where the people were very much afraid (being out towns) butt I told them as I did other places that they should nott be so much cast down, for that they had the happinesse of being subjects of a victorious King who could protect them." Their faith in this victorious king did not prevent action. In July, 1689, a petition to the General Court sets forth that "being by former experience sencesible of the mallice and crueltie" of the Indians, they pray that proper military officers may be appointed to order the military affairs of the town in cases of emergency. Granted July 5, 1689.

The alarm increased as the months went by. The miserable inhabitants of Lancaster and nearby towns had almost no defence, but were forbidden by special act of the Court to remove. They were forced to build, equip and maintain garrison houses. On April 12, 1692, the officer in command of that portion of the province reported, in part, as follows, after asking that at least sixty men be sent up:

"Without such a supply of men I cannot conceive how wee can be defended in case of an Attack by ye enemy; our men must work this summer or starve in winter and ye hard labour in ye day renders ym verry unfit to watch every three or four nights as they must do if they go to Garison & if they stay at yr house they must expose to be made a sacrifice. * * * I am advised ye Lancaster hunters have lately seen a cōpany of Indians near Wachusett ye number of yt is reported to be about 300. * * * This unusual Confluence of so many Indians makes many to suspect and fear a design agst us." He disclaims any intention to dictate to his "superiors" and craves pardon for his simplicity and plainness, ending with these words: "I am not capable at present of a personall waiting upō you, otherwise I could more pticularly spread before you or nakedness & ye extreme danger of destruction yt wee are in if not better defended than at present we are."

In July of that year the Joslin family of Lancaster were all killed or carried away captive. In February, 1694, a petition was sent to his Excellency, the Governor, Sir William Phipps, praying that they might be allowed a re-imbursement for expenses for the garrisons maintained by the requirement of the General Court. After citing the loss of men and means in the previous war, it continues: "And also by being so long necessitated to live in Garison where neither men nor women can doe but very little towards ye supply of theyre families: their being so much time spent in watching warding & many allarums that have been amongst us & that which is more, ye dayly feares we were exposed to in ye Dangers which atended us in our labours, being for so long a time constrained to get our bread with ye perill of our lives: whereby many are brought to extreame poverty not knowing how to get either food or cloathing for themselves or familys: also ye great charge expended in building, repairing and maintaining so many Garissons." *

* *

They were granted £20 toward the expense of garrisons, October 29, 1694.

In such labors, pains and struggles as these, with an occasional single murder by lurking Indians, the years of '95 and '96 wore away. A brief entry of May, 1697, shows how the reign of terror affected some minds.

"In the latter end of this month, a woman, the wife of Lieut. Wilder distrode herself in a fit of melancholly. She was in her Life time esteemed a truly pious woman By them yt knew her."

Garrison House No. 5 belonged to our ancestor, Ephraim Roper. It was on the George Hill road, perhaps on the site of the present school building. A definite apportionment of men had been made so that in case of attack there might be no confusion. The list records concerning No. 5:

"Daniel Hudson and his 2 sons must repair to them (the Ropers) in time of danger. At present they may continue in their own house, it having a good Fort." Hudson had been admitted to the privileges of the town in 1664, the year in which Ephraim's father, John Roper, served on the board of selectmen. He was a brickmaker and dug clay for his work beside the highway a few rods east of the bridge over Roper brook. His dwelling stood on the site of the present Thayer farmhouse.

So vigilant a guard was kept that the Lancastrians had dwelt in comparative safety. This immunity from attack, in connection, perhaps, with the hope of a speedy termination of King William's war, had made them less watchful during the summer of 1697. Cotton Mather says: "On September 11, a party of the enemy came upon the town of Lancaster, then prepared for mischief by a wonderful security and they did no little mischief unto it." In John Marshall's Diary is this entry: "They beset the towne about noon, Burned 10 houses, killed and captivated about 20 persons, of whom the chief was the Reverend John Whiting, pastor of the church there." Among the buildings destroyed that day was the church, built upon the site of their first, burned at the time of the 1676 massacre. Both stood on the highest ground in what is now known as the Middle Cemetery.

Governor Stoughton, in a letter to the Governor and Council of the Connecticut colony, dated September 14, 1697, says: "Upon ye 11th instant, a party of Indians to ye number of about forty as was judged, about twelve o'clock the same day surprized and kild about 26 persons at Lancaster of which the minister of the Town was one, burnt two Garrison houses and two Barnes, the Garrisons being left open and ye Inhabitants surprized in their Fields. There is a party of men out in pursuit of the Enemy."

Of the two garrison houses mentioned in this letter, Ephraim Roper's was one. The doors stood invitingly open. No sentry guarded the approach. Pastor and people, men, women and children were all afield, harvesting the crops that would keep them from "starving in winter." Unarmed, cut off from shelter, they were but as sheep for slaughter. Ephraim, who had seemed hitherto to bear a charmed life, his wife Hannah and fourteen-year-old daughter Elizabeth, were among the slain, and the enemies' belts were adorned with the usual trophies of savage warfare, trophies for which the French at Quebec were paying a liberal bounty. They carried away also the youngest child, Ephraim Roper, then about ten, our ancestor in direct line, one step nearer. Two girls were left, Ruth aged sixteen and Bathsheba about twelve. A number of graves in a field nearby were still discernible in the early part of the nineteenth century, and they are believed to be those of the victims of the 1697 massacre. The exact spot is known to Mr. Henry S. Nourse, to whose indefatigable researches all bearing the name or sharing the lineage of Roper are so greatly indebted.

CHAPTER V.

Ephraim of Worcester.

In the Middlesex County Probate Records, East Cambridge, Mass., is the inventory of Ephraim Roper's estate, taken two days after the massacre. It is interesting to observe what he had been able to accumulate in the twenty-one years that had passed since the total destruction of everything but land, February 10, 1676:

Appraised by Thomas Wilder and John Houghton.

“James Russell, admr. on Estate of Ephraim Roper late of Lancaster (illegible) allowed unto Nathanael Wilder of Lancaster & Jonathan Farnsworth of Groaton, written as above, in ruling thereof upon decsd intestate.” They affirm the inventory to be “correct as far as we know. . . . (illegible) if more appear will cause to be added.”

Among the charges against the estate is this: “Pd to Jonathan Prescott for curing one of ye Daughters of ye said Decd. of a wound Received by ye Indians 7br 97, 2£ 10s.”

As the relative value of money at that date was about five times as much as at present, this fee indicates a serious hurt, and long period of suffering. There is nothing to show whether the injured one was Ruth or Bathsheba.

Ephraim evidently obeyed the Scripture injunction to owe no man anything, for the only items in the accounts of the administrator and his associates, which could represent a debt contracted in his life time, are two, owed to Nathanael Woods of Groton; the first for five shillings, the second for eight. If all of his descendants have their earthly affairs as well in hand, they will be ready in one respect at least for the dread messenger who must come to us, as to him, in an hour which we know not.

James Russell, first named as administrator, does not appear afterward. Nathanael Wilder disbursed all moneys for the estate, and presented a bill for repairs on the house, fence viewing, etc., which may mean that he put the place in order after it was sacked in 1697. He paid rent for the house and land to the year 1700. The main care of all, however, seems to have fallen upon Jonathan Farnsworth of Groton, and there is a paper over his name though not written by him, with this very puzzling heading:

“Grooton Feb. 1699.

“Account of ye charges for my brother, Ephraim Roper.”

A persistent but fruitless search has been made for light upon this claim of kinship. The only possible explanation seems to be that of a marriage with a daughter of John and Alice, whose birth, like that of Ruth Roper, wife of Dea. John Haynes of Sudbury, was unrecorded. No trace of such a family connection, nor indeed of any other, is yet found, but it will be noticed in the subsequent pages that the Farnsworths and Ropers again appear in conjunction. Upon Jonathan devolved the care of bringing again unto his own, the lad Ephraim. Thought and fancy linger long here. The homecoming was probably near the end of 1699. What was the manner of it? Had the two years and over of life among the Indians so far blunted his sensibilities that no tender memories, no heartbreak overwhelmed the child when he saw again the spot where father, mother and sister perished in the horrid din of savage warfare? What tendencies for good, or for evil, had been stamped deep upon his character in those years? What had he seen? Where had he wandered?

There is a tradition outside of our family, as well as within, that he was in Canada where he made himself useful to his masters and was well treated. Some of the prisoners were sold to the priests of Laval Univ., Quebec, and elsewhere in that city, and before their ransom could be effected had become so happy there that they refused to return. Those brought back came by way of Casco Bay, Maine, where was had the most direct communication with Canada. The only reliable reference at hand to Ephraim's wanderings is in the Massachusetts archives and is as follows:

"Cascoe Bay ye 17 January, 1698-9

"The names of the captives Red aboard the Province Gally from the Indians:

Mary ffairbanks of Lancaster

Mary Glasser of Lancaster

The names of captives yett in the Indians' hands:

Ephraim Ropper of Lancaster, Gon to Albanie

Hannah Rugg of Lancaster, Gon to Albanie."

As General Schuyler's mission arranged with the Canadian government for the return of several Massachusetts children along with the Dutch captives in the spring of 1699, it seemed likely at first glance, that Ephraim was then on his way home, but the account presented by Farnsworth at the final settlement proves otherwise, and shows that a tedious journey, probably by way of Canada, was still before him. The account is as follows:

December 1699.

"Ye Charges for Reducin Ephraim Roper out of Captivity In mony time and provisions."

(Wilder's account has the item in this form :

"To Jonathan Farnsworth for money payd for fetching home of Ephraim Roper from ye eastward.") 1*£* 16*s*.
 And on Journey to Lan Kester..... 3*s*.
 And on Journey to Charlestown..... 8*s*.

In another paper a second journey to Charlestown is mentioned and two more trips to Lancaster, "with myself and hors", the last one in January, 1700. The item quoted from Mr. Wilder's report shows past all doubt that the lad's return was by "the eastward," i. e., Casco Bay. The entry which follows, dated Charlestown, June 5, 1700, is the last found at East Cambridge which touches upon his history :

"The following were appointed to divide the property of Ephraim Roper deceased: John Houghton, Thomas Wilder, John Prescott, Cyprian Stevens, Thomas Sawyer."

Of these men, John Prescott was, to the town of Lancaster, what George Washington was to our country. Cyprian Stevens owned the Garrison House next to that of the Rowlandson's, in 1676. The petition for carts to remove the survivors, sent to the Court in March of that year, was in his handwriting. The five men met and reported :

June 1700.	Value of Estate,	65£ 19s. 9d.
	Expenses deducted,	11. 7. 9
	Remaining,	54. 12.
Given to	Ephraim,	27£ 6s.
"	" Ruth,	13£ 13s
"	" Bathsheba,	13£ 13s.

In this division Priscilla, the eldest child of Ephraim and Hannah, born in Concord, February 5, 1679, is not mentioned. She may have died in infancy. The apportionment between Ephraim and his sisters shows that English customs were still in force, although somewhat modified. There is nothing to indicate what home had been provided for the two orphan girls, but they would most naturally be with their aunt, Mrs. John Haynes of Sudbury. No farther reference to them has yet been found. On June 5, 1700, there was also appointed a guardian for Ephraim, Jacob Moore of Sudbury. The administrator's work ended as follows :

"Charlestown, Aug. 27, 1700.

"Jonathan Farnsworth personally appeared and made Oath yt the above said account of three pounds nine shillings, his account of administration on ye estate of Ephraim Roper is just and true to the best of his knowledge."

About this time the Lancaster property passed permanently into the hands of Nathaniel Wilder, who had rented it during the boy's captivity. Ephraim probably entered the family of his guardian and their fortunes thenceforward are closely connected. Richard, a son of Jacob Moore, born September 12, 1670, married Mary Collins of Middletown, Ct. After several years in the vicinity of Sudbury, they settled permanently in Oxford, Mass., where Richard was the second Innholder, first Justice of the Peace, first Representative to the General Court, Town Treasurer 1721-9, fifteen years Town Clerk and fifteen years select man.

Members of the Haynes family soon followed Richard Moore. The vote of John, probably the oldest son of Ruth Roper Haynes, is recorded there in 1717. His sister, Deborah Haynes, was already married to the famous Ebenezer Larned of Oxford, and two of her daughters became the wives of Richard Moore's sons. A still closer tie was formed by the marriage of Sybillah, oldest child of Richard and Mary, born September 2, 1694, in Sudbury, to Ephraim Roper. Although no record of it has yet been found, the fact seems beyond doubt, and the date was probably in 1713. The move to Worcester was probably made about 1721. The cause is easily understood, if we remember how closely Ephraim's life was connected with the Haynes and Moore families of Sudbury. In 1664 the Court granted land to Thomas Noyes, John and Joseph Haynes of that town, in what is now known as the city of Worcester. The death of Noyes delayed occupation. In 1667 the Court appointed a committee to inspect this locality, known as "Quandsicamond Ponds, lying 10 miles westerly from Marlborough, to see if it was suitable for a plantation and to decide how many families it could support." On October 24, 1668, the Committee rendered this report:

"The land mainly is in the hands of the Malden church or of private persons, both, by grant of the Court. A good tract however is left, sufficient to support 30 families or if private rights could be bought, 60 families. The tract is excellently well situated for occupation, having a fine growth of chestnut and other trees and well watered." Occupation was slow, however, owing to the fierce inroads of the Indians from 1675 onward for fifty years. On the last Wednesday of May, 1722, the Court voted that the settlement be called Worcester, be vested with the powers and privileges of other towns.

The two Haynes proprietors of Sudbury probably sold their Worcester rights before this event and Ephraim was no doubt interested in a transaction which materially affected the interests of his aunt. Members of the Haynes family settled in Oxford shortly after Richard Moore's removal to that place, and the descendants of both families are found locating in the new settlement at Worcester. Isaac Moore, the fourth of Richard's children, seems to have been there on a farm before Ephraim, who became his near neighbor. The location can be approximately fixed by a certain grant described in part as follows: "21 acres on Tatnuck Hill, near to Leicester line, bounded northerly by land of Isaac Moore, westerly by line called Capt. Ward's line, and easterly by land of Nathanael Moore and Ephraim Roper." The measurement of Ephraim's boundary line upon the chart fixes the length at about two hundred rods, on or near the Leicester line, in the vicinity of Tatnuck hill. There Ephraim was probably very busy in procuring bread for his rapidly increasing family, to which were added Abigail on March 11, 1722, and Ruth, January 14, 1724. The time had not yet come, however, when he could pursue the calling of the husbandman in peace. The sacrificial fires kindled on many a New England hearthstone were not yet wholly extinguished, although the treaty of 1713 was nominally the end of Queen Anne's war. Brockett says: "There were frequent disturbances with the Indians for the next twenty-three years, the French colonists in Canada prompting the savages to make raids upon the colony of Massachusetts. From 1722 to 1725, these raids assumed the larger proportions of a war and were finally ended by the almost complete extermination of the adjacent tribes.

From October 14 to November 28, 1722, Ephraim was employed by the colonial government, as a "sentinel, to keep garrison, or range the woods," for the protection of the settlement, and his experience among the Indians in captivity was no doubt of great value. He seems also to have turned an honest penny by warring upon other foes. Great flocks of unscrupulous blackbirds, with no fear of man in their make-up, had been a torment from the first, and a bounty had been offered for their heads some time before. Moreover, the vicinity of Worcester was so infested with rattlers that another was added for "snaiks' tayles," and the index of the records of that period shows that Ephraim's name should have been placed among those who drew money for heads and "tayles" presented. He was also one of the nineteen who served as guards in 1724.

On March 24, 1724, it was reported in Town Meeting that, "at ye request of Moses Rice, James Moore, Ephraim Roper and Isaac Moore, for ye stating of a highway from their houses to ye meeting house, we, having taken a view, have stated a highway of three rods wide to go as follows" . . . Mr. E. B. Crane, for many years President of the Worcester Society of Antiquity, and at present its librarian, has prepared a map showing the situation of the lots of some of the early settlers of Worcester. With the aid of this chart, as explained by Mr. Crane, it is easy to understand the location of this highway, formerly known as the "old Leicester road," which coincides with the present Pleasant street for some distance from its junction with Main street.

Under date of March 21, 1729, is an assessment list to meet the expense of laying out a road to Marlborough. Ephraim is taxed 2s. 9d. The largest sum against any name is 1£ 10s. There are only sixteen names on the list of taxable men.

In the proceedings of the Town Meeting of March 2, 1730, is this entry, made, it will be noticed, two weeks after his untimely death: "The persons hereinafter named do enter their Desents against the proceedings of the work of this day, by reason several Tenants are allowed to vote in the choice of Town officers, viz; Moses Rice, Jonathan Moore, Ephraim Roper, James Moore, and Isaac Moore." The cause of this "Desent" against the votes of these five men, does not appear. It may have been their failure to connect themselves with the church. The first stringency in this matter was passing away, as is seen in the diary of Judge Sewell, who, to his latest entry, made not far from this date, opposed any laxity on this point.

Our ancestor was accidentally killed in the woods February 16, 1730. Nothing trustworthy beyond the mere fact is known. He was buried on the east side of the Common, nearly opposite what for many years was known as the Salem Street Congregational Church. Upon the headstone was this inscription:

Here lies Buried ye Body of Ephraim Roper who departed this life February ye 16, A. D. 1730, in ye 43d year of his age.

When the Old South burying ground was finally merged into a park, it became necessary to remove all traces of the graves. The inscriptions upon the stones were carefully copied by Mr. William S. Barton, so widely and honorably known in his long career as City Treasurer of Worcester. A chart was made by Mr. E. B. Crane, already mentioned, showing the exact location of each grave, which is numbered and named. This done, the stones were placed horizontally upon their respective graves, some distance below the surface, and the entire ground levelled and turfed. Few of the thousands who hurry across the spot daily or hourly, even dream that the dead lie thick beneath their feet. The charts assign to the grave of Ephraim Roper the number 158. Both chart and book of inscriptions may be seen at the library of the Worcester Society of Antiquity.

While many of the elements of horror attending the violent deaths of the two previous generations were lacking in this event, there was much that was sad in the case of Sybillah, the young widow of Ephraim Roper. At the age of thirty-six she was left with nine children, the youngest, Hannah, less than a year old, and Daniel, the founder of the Rutland line, yet unborn. How small, comparatively, must be the number of those mothers who can appreciate from experience, the grief of the weary months during which she awaited his advent!

There were, on the other hand, some mitigations. Anxiety concerning the future support of the family was unnecessary, as Ephraim left what was for that time an ample property. The appraisers of the estate were Capt. William Jennison, Joseph Maynard and Daniel Ward. Their report gave a valuation of 659£ 19 s. Sybillah was made administrator, with William Jennison and Richard Moore as bondsmen, the witnesses being Nathaniel Moore, James Rice and Daniel Heywood. In the East Cambridge Registrar's office for Middlesex County is the following statement:

"This may certify whom it may concern that I, Richard Moore, of Oxford in Co. of Suffolk, In holder, am willing to become bound with my dafter Roper, for the administering on her late husband's estate."

It is not difficult to understand how the guidance and support of such friends must have helped Sybillah to face the new life, so suddenly thrust upon her. Nothing has been found which accounts for the choice of her next residence, which was Marlborough. The Worcester home was probably broken up during the year 1731. In 1732 the lawful period for the settlement of the estate having expired, an arrangement was made for the immediate future of the ten children. There is no statement of the share of each, at that time, and no after reference except in the case of John, seventh child, five years later. The list of guardians shows how large a responsibility was assumed by Richard Moore. It is not a little singular that eight of this family, so near to us in point of time, brothers and sisters of the Sterling Ephraim and the Rutland Daniel, have disappeared, while those of the troublous times of the previous century are easily followed.

1. In a petition, dated May 17, 1732, Mary Roper, then seventeen years of age, daughter of the late Ephraim Roper, prays that her Honrd mother Sybillah Roper, be made her Guardian. Granted July 14, 1732, at which time Sybillah was a resident of Marlborough.

2. On August 11, 1732, Richard Moore was made guardian of Ephraim Roper, then sixteen years old; Simon Dakin of Sutton, Bondsman.

3 and 4. On September 20, 1732, the mother, Sybillah, was made guardian of Priscilla Roper, aged fourteen, and Sybilla Roper, aged twelve.

5. On May 12, 1732, Richard Moore, Oxford, was made guardian of Abigail Roper, ten years of age.

6. On July 12, 1732, Richard Moore was made guardian of Ruth Roper, eight years of age.

7. In a petition, dated September 22, 1732, Sybillah Roper says: "I do pre that Ephraim Farnsworth of Harvard may be admitted guardian to my son John, aged about 7 years." He was accepted, and other Farnsworths, all of Harvard, were his bondsmen.

8. On May 12, 1732, Gershom Rice Jun. was admitted guardian of Nathanael Roper, aged about five years.

9. On May 12, 1732, Richard Moore was admitted guardian of Hannah Roper, three years of age.

10. On September 20, 1732, the mother, Sybillah, was duly admitted guardian of Daniel Roper, two years old. In August, 1747, Elijah Moore, Oxford, (son of Richard) was made guardian of Daniel Roper, then seventeen years of age. The name of Nathan Heywood is associated with his, and Timothy Paine is one of the witnesses.

The signature of Sybillah, widow of Ephraim Roper, appears repeatedly upon these papers, in a clear, delicate handwriting. The daughters all make their "mark," even to seventeen-year-old Mary. A petition for a school to be held in their vicinity had been presented, but the arrangement for its sessions at the house of James Moore were not completed till after the death of Ephraim and the subsequent dispersion of the children.

Ephraim Farnsworth, the guardian of John, was the son of Jonathan, of Groton, who was so largely instrumental in "Reducin Ephraim Roper out of Captivity." He, too, was out in 1724, and it seems probable that a strong friendship, if no ties of kindred, united him to his ward's father. The stirring tales to which the lad John had listened in his own home, he heard again here, and they must have sunk deeply into the mind of a delicate child such as he seems to have been. The character and conduct of this war were determined by the policy of the enemy in Canada, and were largely retaliatory. In 1722 there was an enactment of the General Court offering to volunteers without pay or subsistence, for the scalp of any male Indian of twelve years and upward the sum of £100, half price for women and children, scalped or unscalped. That the people were willing to countenance this law is evident from a report made by Captain How of Marlborough, who concludes with these words: "Altho your petitioner and company recovered no scalps, yet being very clear and plain (to it) of the enemies being slain as aforesaid, * * *" they pray for their compensation. The men suffered greatly on these expeditions from lack of organization and suitable equipments. Untoward accidents were added to the sickness that sent many back to their homes. A private journal relates that "Doctor Whitcombe that night set his fut into a Ketel of biling broth that he cold travel no ferther." The troubles were mostly ended before the death of Farnsworth in 1737, at which time his widow Deborah was made guardian of John. Her statement is as follows:

"The said account chargeth herself with a pair of steers coming 2 years old and a heifer coming in 3 years old, and (these are about all the vallue due from my husband on the account. 20£ os. od.

Her final account without date is also given.

A few items, illustrating the manner of life at this period, may not be devoid of interest.

Funeral charges in 1704:

To coffen and grave..... 8s.

To grave clothes and drink..... 18s.

At another funeral the same year the charges were:

To ye coffen and grave..... 8s.

To 4 gall. wine..... 15s. 9d.

To ½ barrill of Syder..... 4s.

To sugger, fruit and spices..... 5s. 6d.

On June 29, 1705, Mary Gardens petitions for redress. The soldiers who came to defend them turned their horses into a field of rye which was totally destroyed. They also drank up a barrel of boiled cider and another of strong beer. Besides this, her husband had been out as chaplain. The Court voted her 3£ 4s. 6d.

A road was voted along the north side of Wachusett mountain. The test of acceptance was that "it should be so feasible as to carry comfortably with four oxen, four barrels of cider at once."

The Lancaster orchards were famous. In 1728 Judge Joseph Wilder made 616 barrels of cider for his neighbors. The sparseness of population must be considered in estimating the amount. Among such surroundings as these, Ephraim of Sterling and Daniel of Rutland were passing through youth to manhood.

CHAPTER VI.

Ephraim of Sterling.

From August 11, 1732,—the date of Richard Moore's appointment as Ephraim's guardian,—to May 26, 1740, nothing is known of him. At that time he enlisted for the expedition against the Spanish in the West Indies. The company roster filed at the State House, gives his birth place Sudbury, his age twenty-three and his occupation that of a husbandman, which would indicate that he was already the owner of land. No record of service is found. It has been stated that none who went from Lancaster ever returned. Austin, in his History of Massachusetts, says: "In the spring of 1740 the state sent forth five hundred of her young men, the majority of whom either fell victims to the insalubrity of the climate or came back with ruined constitutions. Only a few perished in battle." There is no family tradition of this event, but if the generation just passed and gone could be questioned, a full account might be gathered. This war, begun in 1739, was caused by the offense Spain gave, in checking the illicit trade carried on by British merchants in South America. It made little impression upon the minds of the people as a whole, though it is quite likely that our seafaring folk on the coast were sharers of the British trade.

No domestic ties were formed by Ephraim until 1748.

On March 6 of that year the "marriage intentions" of Ephraim Roper, and Michal, third daughter of Benjamin and Zeruiah Houghton, were published. The two families thus brought together had been more or less associated from the founding of Lancaster. Michal's father, who, by this union becomes one of our ancestors, had settled in the precinct of Lancaster known till 1781 as Chocksett, and after that date as the town of Sterling. His reputation as a land appropriator would have done honor to an Englishman. It was a standing argument in the vicinity that there could be no land on the moon, for if there were any such property, he would have had it for a sheep pasture.

Now Landlord Ben, as he was familiarly called, had seven daughters, whose charms may have been enhanced by the paternal acres. Be that as it may, there were many suitors. Zeruiah, the eldest, was the first child born in Sterling, and the first in the old tavern which stood on the present Spencer place. The Town Records reveal an interesting family episode in which she figures as leading lady.

"Nov. ye 25th 1738. Then Jonathan Wilder of Lancaster entered his Ententions of marriage with Zeruiah Houghton of the said town."

Immediately under is this entry:

"Dec. ye 1st, 1738. David Farrar of Lancaster appeared and forbid ye banes of mariage being out asked betwix ye above said Jonathan Wilder and Zeruiah Houghton, and aledged this Reson that shee had Promised him, ye said farrar, mariage from which shee cannot Losly depart." Jonathan was victorious and the result justifies the girl's preference for David's rival. She gave to the town of Sterling in the person of her grandson, Jonathan Wilder, one of its most useful and honored citizens. His name will be found in our genealogical records.

The vigor and industry of these young women is shown by the answer given to another young man who asked for one of them. "Yes," said Landlord Ben, "when you show me that you can butt a log (i. e. true off the chopped end) as well as she can, you may have her."

Michal was married to Ephraim April 8, 1748, by Justice Houghton. At the same time and place, Keziah, the fifth daughter, was wedded to Ebenezer Buss, and in June, Dinah, the fourth, followed suit, thus clearing the home of three daughters in less than three months. They mostly settled in the neighborhood, where their descendants are still very numerous.

Ephraim, like his father-in-law, was a large landholder. His first shelter was on Rowley Hill above the place now known as his homestead. It was a stronghold, built of logs and doubtless lined with brick or stones after the manner of the garrison houses of the previous century. King George's War was on, and the French in Canada still had plenty of Indians in hand for scourging the border settlements of New England. Local legends show that the precautions taken by Ephraim against lurking savages were not uncalled for.

It is not positively known how long the family continued to live in the bullet-proof house, but it seems more than probable that the ten sons and their one sister were all born there. Mr. George Nelson, the present owner, (great grandson of Ephraim) states that the work of plowing the spot still brings to the surface fragments of ancient household implements, such as might be scattered by the "many children who played round the door." There, certainly on January 7, 1750, appeared Benjamin, first of the Decemvirate, progenitor of a numerous line of Sterling Ropers.

The year of Benjamin's birth contains also the last recorded act of Sybillah, mother of Ephraim and Daniel. The letter given below is found in Daniel's History of Oxford, and shows that at some time during the twenty years since the death of their father in Worcester, she had married a man named Chamberlin, perhaps, Ebenezer. No record of the event has yet been found. The "hannah" mentioned was doubtless the baby less than a year old when she became a widow, who might have been staying with her married sister, Starr. It will be remembered that Sybillah's mother came from Middletown, Conn.

"Sibbel Chamberlin of Oxford to Joseph Star of Middletown, Conn.

"Oxford, May 25, 1750.

"Loving son and dafter.

"these are to inform you that I am yet at Father Moore's and am not well. I have the fever and ague. I have not been well all this Spring if you would com down next fall if I am able I will com up with you. I have sent by the barer hereof Som camlet to make you a quilt and a pair of stokins. I desire above all things that you mind the good of your souls, more than for the things of this world, and I desire the same of your two sisters and be often thinking of your diing day; and let not the world steal your hearts from God for I know not that whether I shall ever see you again.

"And hannah, I desire that you be very careful that you do not keep bad company, but studdy the word of God which is able to make you wise to salvation. Do not mis to read a chapter every day, my daughter Star,

Son Star, I desire that you right to me by Mr. Shadtuck and tell me how your wife does. My hartes desire and prayer is that you may be saved and Rest your loving “mother Sibbel Chamberlin.

“the camlet and stockings is for Routh Mather.”

It is interesting to observe the recurrence of Sybillah's name in both the Sterling and Rutland families. With the latter it has the place of honor, showing that Daniel's relations with his mother were close and tender, as would naturally be expected. The names of Moore and Larned also appear in his line, but are not seen in Ephraim's.

Manasseh, the second child, was born May 26, 1752, near the time when the English Parliament decreed that the year should begin on January 1st. The confusion of dates attending this change may account for the disorder apparent in the record of other births in the family.

At the opening of the Revolutionary War, there were seven sons old enough to shoulder the musket, and others well on the way. Father Ephraim never entered the service. He was then fifty-eight and a half years of age, younger than some who did military duty. It may be that his health had been impaired in the West India Expedition, for he died at the comparatively early age (for a Roper) of seventy-seven years, while Daniel of Rutland exceeded his ninetieth birthday by several months.

Ephraim, the seventh son, was the first to respond to the call for men. His name is on the Lexington alarm roll, and after eight days' service in the emergency troop, he enlisted into the regular army. Tradition has it that an unhappy affair of the heart had embittered his life and perhaps made his early death welcome. The scanty records at the State House give no information of the time or place of this event, but it was confidently stated by the elders that he died at Crown Point of smallpox, the date being unknown.

Before the close of that year, Asa was out, on an emergency call, which was his only war experience. His receipt for pay shows his "turn duty" to have been from December 8, 1775 to January 17, 1776. On July 10 of the latter year, Nathanael enlisted for eight months. His company marched away August 18, 1776, and was stationed mostly at Dorchester Heights. In 1777, Manasseh, Enoch and John answered the call for men to meet the detachment of Burgoyne's army sent to Bennington, Vt. Their march began August 21st of that year and the period of service was one month, eight days.

From August 1 to September 16, 1778, Nathanael was again on duty, mostly in Rhode Island for the defense of Newport against Sir Henry Clinton, and Enoch was at Ticonderoga from May to December with the rank of sergeant. He seems to have taken kindly to the life of a soldier, for the year following finds him at Claverack, N. Y., from October 27 to December 11. In the same year (1779) John and Sylvester were at Rutland, Mass., doing guard duty over Burgoyne's captured army, the former with the rank of corporal. He belonged to the Invalid Corps at the time.

It is surmised that Joseph, youngest of the brethren, had his only glimpse of military life at this time and place. In spite of the universal family tradition of "ten brothers in the Revolutionary War," no record of any service is found for this lad, but his enthusiasm may have led him to perform some volunteer duty when he went to visit his brothers.

On April 12, 1780, Silas, the third in point of age, received a commission as First Lieutenant in the Seventh Company of the Second Worcester Regiment. Benjamin and Enoch also enlisted for six months in that year and Enoch is found at West Point from September to November 18, 1781, a soldier for the last time. John and Sylvester were also out for three months in that year, beginning with July 25. It will be noticed that these two were for the second time companions in service. During these years Father Ephraim had acted upon a Committee of Vigilance and Safety, with Jonathan Wilder, Captain Benjamin Houghton and others.

The attention of those left at home during the war must have been largely occupied by preparations for building the new house, which was no small matter when conducted according to the methods of those days. It has already been stated that there is uncertainty about the exact date. In the recent repairs made by Mr. Nelson, some figures were uncovered which indicate that a portion of the lumber was prepared in 1777. Benjamin, the oldest son, had married in 1774, and it seems probable that the need of more room became pressing before many years. It is related that all things were ready, at length, for laying the great floor of the old "long kitchen," but that, when the appointed morning came, it proved to be the famous Dark Day (May 19, 1780). All available children in the neighborhood were collected to hold lanterns and the work went on. The house was probably ready for occupation soon after this date, as no plastering was done till later. The frame was first raised at some distance from the present site, but the situation proving unsatisfactory to Ephraim, he took it down and again set it up where it now stands.

The huge doorstone under the shed, plainly visible in the photograph, is a matter of Sterling history. A large boulder in the next field had fallen asunder in the midst, leaving upon each portion a fairly level face. In the early part of the nineteenth century it was decided to use one-half at the house. The oxen in the town were invited to be present with their owners. Seventy-five pairs were attached and the rock hauled into the dooryard, where, according to the elders of this family and others, a barrel of liquor was hoisted upon it, and the men requested to pay their respects to the contents thereof. Seventy-five men at one time swarmed upon the rock around the barrel in obedience to the invitation. The enormous mass was then lowered into the excavation before the door and lies there to this day, looking just as young as it did a hundred years ago. A portion of the upright of the well-sweep was put in place about the same time, and is preserved with the greatest care by the present owner.

Manasseh, the second son, married in November, 1790, and in the following February Benjamin removed to the neighboring town of Princeton. Manasseh settled at the home to "take care of the old folks." There his father died December 5, 1793. He was buried in what is now known as the Old Sterling Cemetery. The inscription upon the huge slate headstone is as follows:

"An honest man, the noblest work of God.

"Erected to the memory of Mr. Ephraim Roper who departed this life Dec. 5, 1793, in the 78th year of his age.

"Friends and physicians could not save

My mortal body from the grave,

Nor can the grave confine me here

When Christ shall bid me to appear."

Michal his wife, died in 1816, aged ninety-one and a half years. It is supposed that she was buried beside her husband, but there is no stone to mark the spot.

PART II.

Genealogical Record
OF
The Direct Line of Descent
From 1637 to 1730
AND OF
The Sterling Line

GENERAL NOTES.

1. In the following records of the period from 1730 to the present time, the families are classed under the heads of the sixth generation, the children of Ephraim of Sterling, and Daniel of Rutland. It will be seen that one line only, that of Nathanael of Sterling, is represented in the twelfth generation.

2. For the sake of brevity, if the surname is Roper, it is not given. For the same reason, the state abbreviation is omitted, if the town mentioned is in Massachusetts or if the context shows plainly where the town is. Birth is given as "b," marriage "m," unmarried "unm," and death "d."

3. An effort has been made to give the higher educational facilities enjoyed by members of the family as well as their occupations. It is a matter of regret that the information received upon these heads is so imperfect.

4. In classifying the descendants, the male line is followed where intermarriages have occurred.

5. Errors will doubtless be found. For several reasons they are almost inevitable in the first edition of a work of this kind. The author will receive with pleasure notice of all corrections to be made.

FIRST GENERATION.

*The Ephraim Roper Homestead, Sterling, Mass
Built during the Revolutionary War.*

DIVISION INTO STERLING AND RUTLAND LINES.

For the convenience of readers the two lines of Sterling and Rutland separate at this point. The descendants of Ephraim continue here while those of Daniel follow under the head of The Rutland Line.

59. Benjamin Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling, Mass., Jan'y 7, 1750, m. Sterling, 1774, Azubah Willard, b. Sterling, Aug. 15, 1753.

In the family traditions, Benjamin is known as the inveterate worker. Whatever he desired, he would get, "working it out" if other means were lacking. He resided at the Old Homestead in Sterling till the marriage of Manasseh in 1790.

In June, 1780, the government called upon Lancaster, of which Sterling was then a part, to send forty men into the Revolutionary service. Josiah Kendall, politician and innholder, declared it utterly useless to think of raising them. "Capt. Samuel Ward, who had been for five years almost shut out of town councils because his opinions were not strongly Revolutionary," made a speech which so moved all hearts that within twelve days the required number was raised, equipped and ready to march, Benjamin Roper among them. The company roll gives his age at twenty-nine, his height five feet seven inches. The place of service is not mentioned. It is likely that these fresh troops were rushed into the posts on the Hudson, where Benedict Arnold was then playing his desperate game, and also into New Jersey to replace the troops taken southward by Gen. Gates. The company was discharged Dec. 15, 1780.

The "bounty" which Benjamin received shows clearly the condition of our currency at the time. On June 26, 1780, the town announced as follows: "The committee engage to each Man that will enlist 1400^l lawl money, such Part as each Man may want to be paid Down, the Remainder when paid, to be made as good as it now is; or 13^l 6s. 8d. Lawl money to be paid in the Old Way in Corn, beef and live stock or any produce as it formerly used to be sold or the value thereof in Continental money. The above sum offerd. is a Bounty from the Town in Addition to the Wages alowd by the Court."

In the year 1790 Benjamin purchased a farm in Princeton near West Sterling. A nephew, Jonas Roper, son of Asa, was his nearest neighbor on a farm still occupied by his descendants. The site of the Benjamin Roper house is still plainly to be seen. There Azubah, his first wife, died Sept. 2, 1824. On May 21, 1826, he married Mrs. Anna Parmenter, who survived him. He died very suddenly Nov. 1, 1826. He is believed to have been a devout Christian. He received adult baptism from Rev. John Mellen, Apr. 8, 1772.

Issue of Benj. and Azubah Roper, the first seven b. in Sterling, the others in Princeton:

61. Silas Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling, Jan'y 20, 1754, m. Sterling, Dec. 31, 1782, Elizabeth Burpee. Farmer. Residence in the Rowley Hill district. The farm is still known as the "Capt. Roper place," owing to its occupation by his son, Silas, Jun. In Revolutionary service he was 1st Lieut. 7th Co. 2nd Worcester County Reg., Col. Whiting commander; was tall and inclined to be slender; was at one time severely stung by bees, and was always tremulous afterward. He d. Oct. 27, 1827, while his wife lived till Dec. 2, 1850.

Issue, b. in Sterling:

- 87. Silas 2d (7) b. May 21, 1783, m. Lucy Kendall.
- 88. Azubah (7) b. Dec. 9, 1784, m. Samuel Sawyer.
- 89. Betsy (7) b. May 19, 1786, m. Jonathan Wilder.
- 90. Patty (7) b. May 22, 1790, m. Samuel Sawyer 2nd.
- 91. Sylva (7) b. Mar. 10, 1797, d. Apr. 12, 1799.
- 92. Sydney (7) b. Sept. 3, 1801, m. Polly Jewett.
- 62. Asa Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 8, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling, Aug. 16, 1756, m. 1st, Princeton, Mar. 7, 1787, Polly King, who died June 11, 1822. He m. 2nd Vashti Knights of Westminster, who died Oct. 29, 1832. He died July 4, 1834.

Asa, like the other sons, received a farm from his father. This place was also in the Rowley Hill District and joined farms given to his brothers. It is now occupied by Foster Powers. He was the first of the Ten to enlist for Revolutionary service. After the Lexington excitement subsided, the troops called forth by that emergency went home. Gen. Washington entreated that more men might be furnished by Massachusetts, and Lancaster's quota of the required number was forty-six. A receipt signed by Asa Roper and seventeen other men, is preserved in the War Records at the State House. It shows that they were commanded by Capt. White and that they served from Dec. 8, 1775, to Jan. 17, 1776.

On the settlement of his estate in 1836, Jonathan Wilder, guardian of minor heirs, was "granted leave to sell property at the house of Daniel Hunt, Innholder." At this sale, one pew in the Unitarian church brought $24.25 and a half pew $7.00, while a horse shed went for $3.25. This seems to indicate that Asa and his family were church going people. In person he was short and stout, and in his later years very lame.

Issue, by first wife, all born in Sterling.

93. Jonas (7) b. Oct. 8, 1787, m. Polly Edson.

94. Harry (7) b. Feb. 2, 1792, m. Betsey Reed.

95. Sintha (7) b. Mar. 28, 1793, d. July 21, 1794.

63. Nathanael Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1).

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling, Feb. 23, 1758; m. Sterling, June 11, 1778, Naomi, daughter of John and Elizabeth Gibbs, b. Nov. 4, 1761. He enlisted in the Revolutionary service July 10, 1776, in response to an emergency call, and was out for eight months, mostly at Dorchester Heights. Soon after his marriage the alarm of Sir Henry Clinton's expected attack upon Newport, R. I., enforced another emergency call, to which he responded and had the rank of corporal in the troops stationed near Newport from Aug. 1, to Sept. 16, 1778.

The births of two children are entered upon the Sterling Records. According to an autograph letter from the eldest of these, Capt. Ephraim Roper, a third child was also born here, who could have been no other than John Roper, one of the earliest settlers of Lake County, Ohio. The date of their removal is as yet uncertain, but the general belief among the descendants of the fourth child, Ezra Roper, is that he also was born in Massachusetts. The site of their old home is still traceable at the beginning of the road leading to the Willie Nelson place.

The location of the new home is as uncertain as the date of their leaving here. A careful study of all accessible facts leads to the belief that it may have been Southington, Ct. There, possibly, Naomi (Gibbs) died, not far from 1786. The letter above mentioned, now in the possession of George W. Roper, of Ashland, Ore., is our best, as it is, indeed our only authority concerning the remainder of Nathanael's life. Under date of Mar. 28, 1851, he wrote: " . . . My father had two wives. He had, by the second, three boys, namely, Sylvester, Nathanael and Luther. . . . Luther was a doctor. . . . He died in Hamlin, New Haven Co., Ct. Your grandfather (Nathanael) died in New Hartford near Utica, N. Y., of small pox, May 28, 1800, in the forty-third year of his age. . . . I have given you a long account of your ancestors. It will enable you to know something of them yourself, and to hand down this knowledge to your children. Perhaps it may go on to ages to come. I think there is no other member of the Roper family who can give you these facts." From another portion of this letter, it is inferred that the second wife died in Southington, Ct., Feb., 1841. Her name and parentage, as well as the date of her marriage to Nathanael, are unknown.

102. Luther, M. D., — — — d.

64. Enoch Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling, Dec. 7, 1758; d. unmarried, June 2, 1820, Sterling.

In the company roll of 1780, Revolutionary Records, his height is given as 5 feet 9 inches. He enlisted five times during the war, for periods of varying lengths; was present at the Bennington fight with his brothers, Manasseh and John; served nine months at Ticonderoga, with rank of sergeant; also at Claverack and West Point. The place of service in 1780 is not found.

65. Ephraim Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling; date not yet found. His name is on the Lexington alarm roll, as private. After eight days' service, he enlisted into the Regulars with rank of sergeant, Capt. Williams' company of Col. Doolittle's regiment. A family tradition exists to the effect that he died of small pox at Crown Point, but assigns no date.

66. John Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling; no date recorded; m. Sterling, by Parson Holcombe, May 10, 1792, Dorcas, daughter of Joseph (or Jacob) and Mary (Sawyer) Kilburn, of that town; b. May 17, 1768. In youth and early manhood, he had a reputation for great strength and skill in wrestling. His first Revolutionary service was at Bennington, Vt.; the second at Newport, R. I., then threatened with invasion by Sir Henry Clinton; the third and last as member of the Invalid Corps, sent for guard duty over Burgoyne's captured army, held in barracks at Rutland, Mass. This would seem to prove that he had been wounded in service.

The homestead known as the John Roper place is beautifully situated on the north side of Wachusett mountain, and has been rendered famous by Whittier's poem: "Wachusett to Monadnock." There he died Apr. 10, 1833, and there also Dorcas Kilburn Roper, his wife died "in the peace of God," Mch. 6, 1844.

The exact date of erection of this typical old New England farmhouse has not been fixed, but it was probably ready for the bride, Dorcas, at her marriage in May of 1792. In the Recorder's office, Worcester, are three conveyances of land to John Roper, neither of which mention any dwelling house. Traditions exist in the family, moreover, that he not only met the expense of building, by surveying, but also that he paid for most of his land in the same way. The accompanying view of this house shows, at the front, not far from the giant maple, a "Dr. apple-tree," (no longer standing), planted by John Roper, Sen. The memory of its delicious fruit is sufficient to excite enthusiasm even to this day. Other trees of this kind were in the orchard and the present generation can only envy those who lived when they flourished.

The first conveyance of land was as follows:

Ephraim Roper, to John Roper, his son, being his portion in his father's estate, Seven and $\frac{1}{4}$ acres in the westerly part of Sterling, bounded by lands belonging to Joel Houghton, Jonathan Wilder, Jun., and Ephraim Osgood; dated Apr. 5, 1790, and the 14th year of our nation's Independence.

Second Conveyance:

Joel Houghton to John Roper.

In consideration of 160£ lawful money paid to Joel Houghton, he conveys to John Roper, 97 acres, a tract in the westerly part of Princeton, bordering westerly on land of Joshua Everett, northerly on Westminster Town line, southerly on land of said John Roper and Joseph Roper, and easterly on land of Joel Houghton and of Ephraim Osgood. Dated Sept. 20, 1790, in the 14th year of our nation's Independence.

Third conveyance:

Joel Houghton to John Roper. In consideration of the sum of $101.24, six acres and 120 rods of land in the northerly part of Princeton, bounded on three sides by said Roper's land and on the fourth side by said Hough-ton's land. Dated Aug. 15, 1815, and signed by Joel Houghton alone.

A fourth conveyance of some interest is from Joel Houghton to John and Joseph Roper.

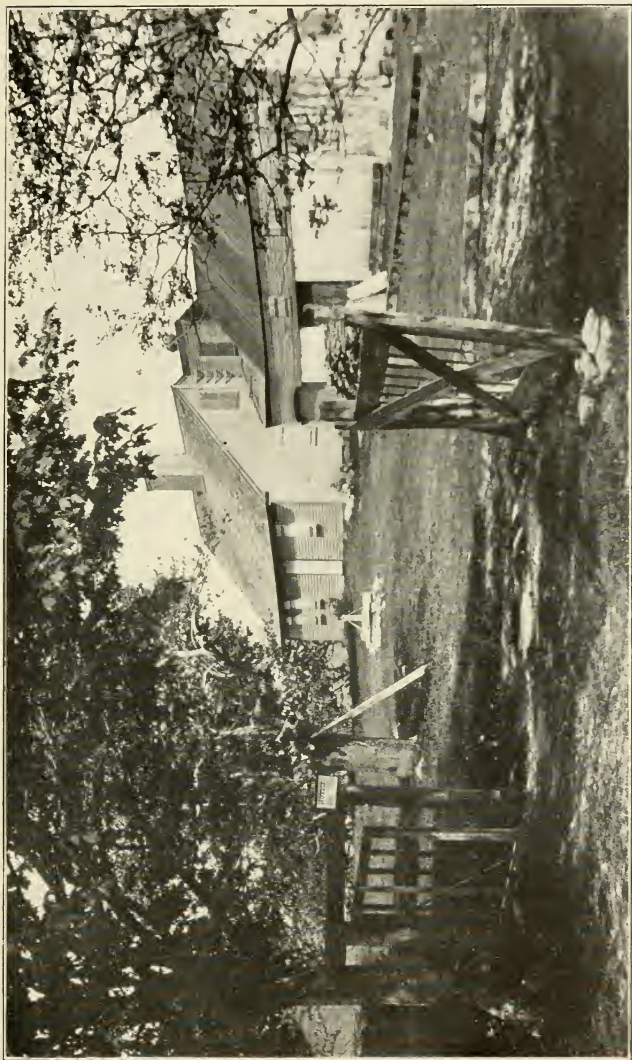

In consideration of the sum of 80£ lawful money, paid to Joel Houghton, he conveys to the brothers, 49 acres, bordering on land of Joel Houghton and on Westminster town line, lying on the slope of Great Hill or Wachusett mountain. Dated Apr. 5, 1790. Signed, witnessed and drawn as in No. 2. The Homestead is at present in the possession of Mrs. John Sawtelle of Fitchburg.

It was the above Dorcas who made Whittier wish he

"Were a painter for the sake
Of a sweet picture, and of her who led
A fitting guide with reverent tread,
Into that mountain mystery.
The great woods climbed the mountain at our back
And on their skirts where yet the lingering day
On the shorn greenness of the clearing lay,
The brown old farmhouse like a bird's nest clung,
* * * * * He only spake.
Looking into the sunset o'r the lake
Like one to whom the far-off is most near,
'I love it for my good old mother's sake
Who lived and died here in the peace of God.'"

The spot is dear to the hearts of other poets who have lingered here and loved "these mountain mysteries." Mrs. Dwinnell writes of it:

Along the stretch of coming days
And years, who then will walk these ways
And climb upon this rugged steep
While others in its bosom sleep.
For the same stars their watch will keep,
And shine upon Wachusett.

67. Sylvester Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling, July 29, 1762; m. Sterling, Nov. 11, 1804, Catharine Pierce. Residence Justice Hill, Sterling. He was remarkable for his extensive and accurate knowledge of the Bible, as well as for his conversational powers. He is described by those who knew him in middle age as the life of every gathering, and the delight of old and young alike. Catharine Pierce Roper, who was born Mar. 6, 1771, died Nov. 3, 1841. At the time of his death, which occurred Mar. 2, 1849, a fellow citizen said of him: "If we lived as we ought, we should all pass away like him."

Issue, all born in Sterling:

68. Joseph Roper (6) (Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Ephraim and Michal (Houghton) Roper, b. Sterling, Dec. 29, 1764, m. Sterling, Nov. 27, 1800, Ruth Gerry, daughter of ———,

b. Sterling, May 18, 1776; she d. Jackson, Pa., July 20, 1860 twenty-three years after the death of her husband, which occurred suddenly, Mar. 15, 1837. Both are buried in Gibson, Pa.

We are indebted to Mr. D. W. Rice, of New Milford, Pa., for the following:

“After the marriage of my grandfather, Joseph Roper, and Ruth Gerry, they lived on the farm since known as the Flavel Rice place, on Gerry Hill. Here their children were born, and here they lived till the spring of 1830, when they moved to the (at that time) wilderness of Susquehanna County, Pa., in company with their son-in-law, Daniel W. Rice. He had preceded them by a year, built a sawmill and a house to shelter them, returning to Massachusetts to convey the two families to their new home. The journey was made by private conveyance, the party being made up by my grandfather, Joseph Roper, and wife, their daughter, Lucia C., and her sister, Candace (Roper) Rice, and her husband, Daniel Woods Rice, with their three children, the youngest of whom was only five months old. The start was made from the Joseph Roper place, Gerry (Justice) Hill, in the month of May, and the journey occupied six weeks, by way of Kingston on the Hudson, and Albany. They crossed the Delaware near its source, thence down the river to Hales Eddy; across the country to Starruca. From there, for a few miles there was no road. Their route to Thomson, their last stopping place, was marked by blazed trees only. They settled in the eastern part of Gibson township, where my father had prepared for them the year previous. The Newberg turnpike had been completed through the place, connecting that town on the Hudson with Lake Erie. This in its day was the grand thoroughfare from the Great Lakes to New York City, taking nearly all the travel from Southern New York and Northern Pennsylvania to the metropolis. Four-horse tallyho coaches were run each way daily and frequently extras had to be put on to accommodate the traveling public. The little hamlet comprised at first only a general store, small tannery, two shoeshops, blacksmith's forge, a sawmill and a few dwellings, but it soon became a center of trade for the surrounding country. My grandfather was quite a genius and after coming here, worked some at coopering, beside making spinning and flax wheels. Both he and my father were kept busy, making chairs for themselves and others, and various kinds of furniture, sawing the logs hauled to the mill the winter before, building wagons for the settlers, my father being a wagon maker by trade. The women braided hats from palm leaf, in which they were experts. This high tide of prosperity was interrupted by the death of my father, Feb. 22, 1831, without a moment's warning. The two families remained together till the marriage of the youngest daughter, Lucia, to John J. Roper, of the Rutland Line, Apr. 23, 1834. My father being dead, the old people went to live with them on a farm in the woods near New Milford, Pa., where grandfather Roper died suddenly March 15, 1837. Grandmother was a quiet, cheery woman, good company, with always a helpful word and generous deed to those in need of assistance. They accepted the doctrines of the Universalist Church and lived up to its teachings.

Mr. Roper lived for many years in the vicinity of the paternal homestead, Justice Hill, and, like his brother Martin, proved conclusively that farming could be made to pay. Later, he built in Sterling Centre, the house where he died August 17, 1888. Mrs. Roper continued to occupy the place, and was a beneficent influence in the community. Although for many years a great sufferer she maintained a lively interest in all that concerned the welfare of the community, whether of church or town, and was ever ready to help. Her final release from pain came November 3, 1903. No issue.

JOSEPH'S LINE, (6).

116. Candace Roper (7) (Joseph 6, Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Daughter of Joseph and Ruth (Gerry) Roper, b. Sterling, March 14, 1806, m. Sterling, June 2, 1824, Daniel Woods Rice, son of Abel and Anna (Jones) Rice, b. October 29, 1799. The spirit of unrest was rife at this time in both Sterling and Rutland. The star of the Ropers was taking its way westward. Candace, her husband and three little children were of the party that left Gerry Hill, Sterling, on a bright spring morning of 1830, for the long journey into the wilds of Pennsylvania. The route has been already given, under the number of Joseph Roper, in a quotation from a description by Mr. D. William Rice, the youngest member of the company. They entered upon their new life in Harford, Penn., with every prospect of success, but the untimely death of Mr. Rice, February 22, 1831, changed all. It came without a moment's warning and left his varied and extensive business without a head. Mrs. Rice kept her family together and the three sons grew to manhood. After twenty-three years of widowhood, she married, May 7, 1854, George T. Perry, of Jackson, Pa., who d. November 22, 1869. Previous to this marriage she made her last visit to Sterling, Mass., and seemed to enjoy greatly revisiting the spots beloved in childhood. Her last years were spent with her son, D. W. Rice, who had built a house for her. She passed away September 26, 1889, and was buried in Harford, Pa., beside her first husband. Issue b. Sterling:

291. Edwin Rice (8) b. Jan. 26, 1826, m. Caroline Perley.

292. Joseph Rice (8) b. Apr. 3, 1828, m. Susan Maynard.

Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Sister of preceding, daughter of Joseph and Ruth (Gerry) Roper, b. Sterling, August 26, 1812, m. Gibson, Pa., April 23, 1834, John Jefferson Roper, son of John and Sarah (Howe) Roper, b. Rutland, August 2, 1813. Both families had joined the exodus to Pennsylvania and these young people may have met first in their new home. The Sterling Ropers must lament the loss of Lucia's seven children from their list, but as what is Sterling's loss, is Rutland's gain, they may be consoled. The issue, b. Gibson, Pa., will be found under the number of John J. Roper, of the Rutland line. Mrs. Lucia Roper passed away, New Milford, Pa., October 2, 1852.

H., November 11, 1875, Mrs. Elizabeth (Spalding) Davidson. Mr. Nelson is a remarkable example of what can be accomplished by sheer force of will. In a severe illness at the age of twenty, he was told by his physician that he would never walk again. After thinking the matter over for some hours, the young man said, " I will walk!" Sending for a neighbor, he unfolded to him a plan by which a machine could be constructed that would enable him to exercise the useless limb. His idea was carried out and brought to the sick room. In this, he labored grimly for months, at what seemed at first, a hopeless task. The power of motion returned gradually and strength followed. He not only walked again, but worked to such good purpose that he gained his great ambition of owning the old Roper homestead, redeemed from the forest primeval in 1748. On this historic spot the first general reunion of the Roper Association was held in August, 1901. Mr. Nelson won the gratitude of all by his generous hospitality, and by his untiring efforts for the pleasure and comfort of his guests. He has the hearty good wishes of all, for a serene and happy evening of life. Issue b. Sterling :

San Diego, Cal., December 26, 1903. In accordance with his expressed wish, the body was taken to Los Angeles for cremation. It has been said of this man that "his enterprises spanned the continent and almost paralleled the industrial development of our country. The spirit of his far-removed Aryan ancestors came upon him in youth and he left his father's home for the then unknown West. In the deep forests of Wisconsin, first as boy laborer, then as logging contractor and lumber man, he laid the foundations of his successful business career. In 1859, he was one of those who laid out the city of Beatrice, Neb., now the third in size of that State. There for many years he was prominent in public affairs, was State Senator in 1869. In 1874, he went to Bakersfield, Cal., to engage in the milling and flouring business. In 1884 he removed to Ashland, Ore., where he was actively concerned in many of its enterprises during its period of rapid development. Returning to the Bakersfield home, he engaged in various undertakings of banking and real estate business, acquiring valuable tracts in the oil fields, among other property. Always cheerful and uncomplaining, whatever might betide, he bore with fortitude the last long struggle with disease and suffering." If there are, now, more sorrowing hearts and homes than can usually be counted for any one man, there are likewise more who rejoice at having shared the friendship of this brave-hearted genial son of Sterling !

242. Mary Lawson Roper (8) (Ezra 7, Nathanael 6, Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Daughter of Ezra and Abigail (Lawson) Roper, b. Braceville, Trumbull County, Ohio, March 16, 1821; m. Farmington, Ohio, August 20, 1842, Abel Tracy Curtis. This saintly woman passed the later years of her life in the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. N. Wright, of Harlan, Iowa, where she fell asleep in Jesus, January 29, 1904. She retained her faculties, bodily and mental, to a remarkable degree, and had been able to sit in her arm-chair till very near the end, bearing her infirmities with such sweetness and patience that her presence was a beneficent influence in the home. Her last request was that the words, "Asleep in Jesus" should be placed upon her gravestone, after which she continued murmuring softly, "Blessed sleep, from which none ever wake to weep." And so, like God's servant of old, "fell on sleep."

Among other interesting reminiscences, Mrs. Curtis wrote: "I remember Ohio when it was a new and heavily timbered country. The timber wolves, which we could hear howling, made raids on the farmers' sheep, and a big hunt was organized to kill them off. My father was among the men and had just stepped the other side of a tree, when a stray bullet struck the trunk just where he had been standing. He cut it out, and brought it home to show us. Next day he took us out to see the wolves, and I have never seen one since. I also remember a visit made by Uncle John Roper (of Lake County) to our house; also that my father took us to return the visit. He had a flour mill and took us down under it to see the machinery."

Samuel Richardson Heywood ably represents the class of men who have given to Massachusetts her proud pre-eminence among the States of our country. Born long before the era of technical education, he was dependent upon the district school and the village academy for his early intellectual training. The larger and truer had for him, however, no such limitations. His splendid physique was gained upon his father's farm among the hills of Princeton. There, too, the strength of purpose that turns obstacles into incentives, a sound judgment and an unbending integrity all took their place in his character and made him a marked figure in Worcester history. It is not a little interesting to observe that, in his business career, whatever the undertaking might be, whatever the position he held, employé or partner, he was soon at the head of the firm and ready for the next greater thing beyond. He worked for his father on the farm until he was of age. He then entered the employ of E. D. and

E. A. Goodnow, who manufactured shoes and kept a large country store in Princeton. In 1848, he began business in the neighboring town of Hubbardston, under the firm name of Heywood and Warren, afterward buying out his partner, Mr. Warren. His success there led to the desire for a larger field of activity. Believing in the future growth of Worcester, he established himself there in 1855, conducting a boot and shoe business, wholesale and retail, in company with Mr. E. A. Goodnow, his former employer. This partnership was dissolved in 1856, and Mr. Heywood continued the retail trade alone for eight years. In 1864 he began the manufacture of boots and shoes.

It has been said that a history of his business would be a history of this great industry in Massachusetts. It would cover the small beginning, with mostly hand labor, the introduction and perfection of machinery, with the vast increase of output until to-day, the Heywood Boot and Shoe Company, incorporated under Massachusetts laws, gives employment to two hundred or more persons, manufacturing over a half million dollars' worth of fine sewed shoes annually. Mr. Heywood, President of the corporation. His oldest son, Frank E., Harv. Univ., '82, was Vice-President and Treasurer from the time of his graduation until his decease, in October, 1899. His youngest son, Albert S., Mass. Inst. of Technology, '92, who had been for seven years in the employ of the General Electric Company as engineer, was elected immediately after the death of his brother, Vice-President and Treasurer of the corporation.

Mr. Heywood has served both the State and the city in many public capacities with marked ability and loyalty to their interests. He was a member of the Common Council in 1859, 1872, and 1873; was President the last year; was a member of the Board of Aldermen in 1860 and 1861. In 1874, he was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and was twice reelected, being an active member of the Committee on Railroads each year. In 1879 he was appointed Trustee of the State Reform School at Westboro, and of the Industrial School at Lancaster, holding these positions many years, rendering the State valuable service in connection therewith. He was a Director of the Central National Bank of Worcester from 1865 to 1903; a charter member of the People's Savings Bank, incorporated 1864, and was elected President, July, 1884, holding the position at the present time. He has been for many years a prominent member of Plymouth Congregational Church, to which he has given his loyal support financially and otherwise. He has also aided liberally, the Worcester Y. M. C. A. and the Memorial Hospital. Mr. Heywood has been in active business for over fifty years. He is still the energetic head of the firm, with a vigorous grasp upon the other interests so long associated with his name.

267. Dorcas Kilburn Heywood (8) (Dorcas 7, John 6, Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Sister of preceding, daughter of Ezra and Dorcas (Roper) Hoar, b. Princeton, March 8, 1824; m. Hubbardston, January 19, 1853, Rev. Joseph Whitmore Lewis, son of Timothy and Sally (Whitmore) Lewis, b. South Royalston, June 23, 1812; passed away Clinton, January 17, 1889. He was thrice married. Mrs. Dorcas K. Lewis, his second wife, d. Princeton, April 22, 1863.

631. Edward Samuel Lewis (9) b. Natick, Aug. 24, 1855, m. Anna C. Sparks.

633. Joseph Warren Lewis (9) b. Newton Upper Falls, Jan. 20, 1860, m. Mary L. Perkins.

The Rev. Joseph W. Lewis had by nature a deep reverence for all things sacred. At the age of eighteen he became a member of the M. E. Church in Phillipston, there being none of that denomination in his own village. He began his preparations for the ministry soon after, studying at Wilbraham. His career as a clergyman typifies a phase of the Methodist Church which can hardly appear again, at least in New England. The following facts are gleaned from his diaries:

His salary for the first eight years averaged one hundred and sixty-five dollars per year, paid partly in fuel, partly in provisions. For one year, nearly the whole sum was paid in palm-leaf hats, which could be exchanged for goods at the store. His first hundred dollars were spent for a horse, a saddle and the various minor equipments of the circuit rider of a century gone by. His powers of endurance can be judged from the fact that in forty-one consecutive years of service he lost but three Sundays from illness and could recall but six vacation Sundays in the whole period. And yet, at the end of fifty-four years of the ministry, he affirmed, unhesitatingly, that if his life were to be lived again, he would choose the same path.

He was admitted to the New England Conference in 1835 and the first stationed in the Rowe circuit, with Rev. Charles Hayward; ordained deacon at Nantucket, 1837, and elder at Lynn, 1839, by Bishop Soule. Among his many charges were the M. E. Churches in Webster, Fitchburg, Natick, Newton Upper Falls, Clinton and the old Laurel Street Church of Worcester. He was a genial man, of calm, even temperament, possessed of a fund of humor that made him a delightful companion in the ministry and in social life.

MANASSEH'S LINE, (6).

368. Sarah J. Tuttle (9) (Lucy 8, Myra 7, Manasseh 6, Ephraim 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Daughter of Uriel and Lucy (Burpee) Tuttle, b. Sterling, June 29, 1835. m. Sterling, March 24, 1858, Ephraim B. Hadley, b. Sterling, November 29, 1821. He d. there February 24, 1891. Farmer. The subject of this record, Mrs. Sarah J. Hadley, is a remarkable example of the power of those who "only stand and wait." Totally blind since March, 1899, partially paralyzed since August 23, 1901, she nevertheless wields a unique influence, equalled by few citizens in this or in neighboring towns. Patient in suffering, brave under adverse fortunes, forgetful of self, warmly sympathetic in the sorrows of others, of clear judgment, a discreet adviser and faithful friend, it is little wonder that she is enshrined in the hearts of the community, and the object of the tenderest care among the members of her own family. Entered into rest June 2, 1904. The author of these records is indebted to her for valuable aid in their preparation.

777. Josephine Hadley (10) b. Sterling, July 26, 1860, d. Feb. 10, 1901.

The following sketch of the life of the Rev. Francis Ward Davis is from the pen of his wife:

It was September 8, 1857, in the town of Sparta, Wis., where Charles and Mary Davis lived for only a short time, that Francis Ward Davis was born. They soon moved back to Princeton, Mass., where most of Francis' life was spent. That was a Christian home, a pious father, a wonderfully devoted Christian mother. She had left the Catholic faith to become a Protestant and had suffered no little persecution for Christ with Whom she walked. "Give me a child until he is ten years of age and his character will be formed." The mother's strong faith amid persecution was stamped upon her firstborn son until he was ten; then she went home to her Christ and the little lad was now here and now there and the faith of his mother seemed slipping away from him. He made several voyages on a whaling vessel, and did many kinds of work when on land, working in a boarding house, setting type, and blacksmithing.

He became much interested in debate, in the village store and debating society, but farther and farther from the faith of his parents he strayed until he was most pronounced in his views against Christianity. In 1883, Rev. Archibald L. Love became pastor of the Congregational Church of Princeton, and he and Mr. Davis had many talks upon religious subjects. Mr. Love says: "He told me once in my pleading with him for the Christian life that he understood my feeling and that of all Christians. They felt like children and wanted the comfort of a strong Helper, and so were led to believe in God. For his part, he had no such need and looked down with contempt upon our childish faith. Going to his home one evening, we talked on the subject. I was urging him to go as far in the way of light as he could see and not wait for the whole path to be illumined before he commenced. He claimed he was doing the best he knew how. I took exception, for he had admitted the use of tobacco was profitless, if not injurious, and I said he ought to give tobacco up. He agreed and promised to use it no more.

At the next meeting he arose and said: "I am now ready to do my best to serve Him." It was too good to be true, but true it was, and immediately he took hold of religious duties, prayers and work in the meetings. This was in February, 1885. Before September, he had made up his mind to go to Oberlin Theological Seminary to study for the ministry. It was early in his course in Oberlin that he decided to be a missionary.

Ah! the prayers of that Christian father and mother were being answered. After the years, the prodigal had come home! Was not the father glad, and the rejoicing in heaven, did it not include a song of thanksgiving from his angel mother gone before?

In May, 1889, he graduated from the Seminary, and in August of the same year, with his wife, sailed for China to labor for the American Board, in the now famous Province of Shansi. For eight years the faithful man did well the daily duties in his home, a perfect husband, a devoted father. As Mission Treasurer his promptness and accuracy won from the Treasurer of the A. B. C. F. M. the highest commendation. As missionary worker, assisting the doctor, preaching in the chapel, distributing tracts and books in the streets of village and city.

Then in 1897 came his furlough, when he spent two and a half years in the United States, returning to China in December, 1899, leaving his family in America for another year on account of illness. He was alone much of the winter of 1899-1900, and his letters show a closer walk with the Saviour whom he was soon to meet. He says: "God speed the day when the temple bells of China shall call the worshipers to worship the one true God. I am going back to the field determined to know nothing but Christ and Him crucified."

On July 31, 1900, in Taiku, Shansi, after a month's siege, the dread mob, led by the Imperial soldiers, whose orders came from the Governor sent them by the Empress Dowager, did their diabolical work and the noble blood was poured out upon that province which has even now caused the seed to spring up and a great harvest of souls is ready for the garnering.

The light of his life went from us, leaving us in the shadow, but we turn our faces toward the sunset and catch the glow of his great welcome when the pearly gates were opened and his praying mother clasped to her heart her returned son as he came home, bringing his sheaves with him, while the Christ whom he served said to him: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant. Enter thou into the joy of the Lord." The after-glow of the sunset of his life rests upon us. Who will go to that grand harvestfield of Shansi to carry on the work he has left for us to do? L. L. D.

The accompanying view shows the burial place of Rev. Francis Ward Davis, whose grave is at the extreme left. A wealthy Chinaman permitted the bodies of the fifteen martyred missionaries to be interred in a secluded corner of his beautiful garden. We are indebted to the courtesy of Mrs. Davis for a copy of this photograph.

This family suffered sorely in the massacre planned by the Annuity Sioux Indians in 1862. Their experience recalls vividly the Lancaster tragedies in which John (2) and Ephraim (3) met their fate. Improved facilities for escape and readier protection by military saved this and other kindred families from a like death. Mrs. Barnes writes :

"Carl was only a week old when our nearest neighbors, the Bennetts, rode up just at sundown, saying : 'The Indians are only half a mile back, destroying everything.' They took baby and me, and, wrapping us as best they could, carried us to the wagon, while Mr. Barnes ran to find Frank who was playing out of doors. We left the supper table standing and saved nothing ; and yet we saved everything, for we all escaped unharmed. We were taken to the only frame building in town : fifty-five women and children upstairs, while below the men cleaned their rifles, posted guards, and made ready for the approaching savages. These, however, when a quarter of a mile away, took the wrong trail in search of us. Next morning the men organized a home guard to do military duty till the arrival of government troops. Those who had horses on the spot were detailed to carry women and children to places of safety. My babies and I were taken to Minneapolis, and hard indeed I found it for the next six weeks to live. We had enough to eat, but no clothing. The children were both sick from the long journey—about one hundred miles in an old team wagon, with logs laid down for bridges over the many small streams. My husband was at Sauk Centre, serving on the Home Guard. The hardship nearly killed my two little boys; but God gave us strength and life and at last we were re-united with much to be thankful for. We forgot our own troubles in our deep sympathy for our friends, who had suffered so much more than ourselves."

Genealogical Record
OF
OF
The Rutland Line.

The Rutland Line.

The second great family included in the Roper Association belongs to Rutland, Mass.

This town enjoys the distinction of being the exact geographical centre of the State, and came within one vote—and that a hired one, it is said—of being the judicial centre of Worcester County. The beauty of its situation has made it a pleasure resort in summer, while its healthfulness has drawn thither thousands of invalids for the entire year.

But history preceded society in the town and played nobly her part in the Rutland drama. There, patriot and tory fought out the battle of opinions in the “town-meetin’,” and the tory sought a more congenial atmosphere under the shelter of darkness, while his estates went to the government. There the Roper boys of Sterling helped to guard Burgoyne’s captive army, a portion of which they had fought at Bennington. There, when the Revolutionary War was over, projects were formed for the welfare of the still unpaid officers of the Continental Army. The idea of issuing to them grants of land, newly acquired by treaty with Great Britain, originated in the mind of Gen. Rufus Putnam and his old Rutland Homestead is often called the Cradle of Ohio. The first contingent of New England emigrants for Marietta packed their few belongings into ox-wagons in his dooryard and started on their toilsome journey westward, joining others at Hartford, Ct. All Rutland had gathered that morning to bid them Godspeed; and those left behind,—few enough in those days,—returned to their homes like men who had come from burying their dead.

A few years later History and Society strove together in Rutland for possession of a small child, a girl with wonderful, bewildering eyes. It was a tie, but Society had her innings first. Betsey Bowen, daughter of a Providence fisherman, stepdaughter of a poor, drunken shoemaker driven from town to town, lest he become a public charge; Betsey, who, with her sister Polly and her miserable parents, lived in a dugout near the entrance to what is now New Boston Cemetery, soon driven out from there like rats, to find shelter elsewhere;—this same Betsey, early in the next century, dazzled Paris, and later New York, as Madame Jumel. Then History took a hand and tangled her life line with those of Hamilton and Aaron Burr. Her married life with the latter was brief.

After her death our kinsman, Reuben, son of Sibbelah (Roper) Walker, was summoned to New York as a witness in the law case by which the vast estates of Stephen Jumel were settled.

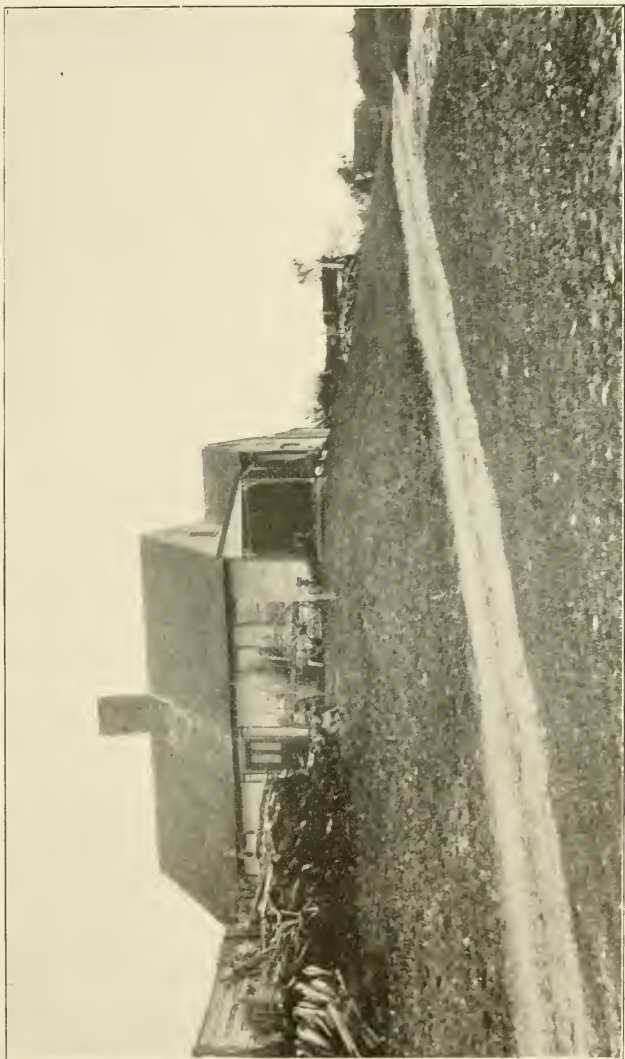

Daniel Roper, the youngest brother of Ephraim of Sterling, born Worcester October 2, 1730, came from Sutton to Rutland in 1777, buying a farm from John Bruce of that town "for the sum of three hundred and sixty pounds lawful money." The deed, recorded in Worcester, mentions one "tract of forty-three acres with a house and barn thereon, which I purchased from Capt. Samuel How. as by a deed may more fully appear." This deed of Bruce to "Roper of Sutton" was recorded July 4, 1777. In the instrument above referred to, it is stated that, for the sum of one hundred and twenty pounds lawful money, Samuel How sold the same parcel of land "with a mansion house and barn there," to John Bruce "in 1771, being the 11th year of His Majesty's reign." Values increased rapidly, apparently.

The farm had passed through divers hands. In 1762, according to a deed, Samuel How sold to Benj. Smith of Warren, one-half the farm, with house and half the barn, but in 1769 it reverts to How, and the impecunious Smith vanishes.

Reed's History of Rutland says: The lands and buildings owned by the Messrs. Nurse have been owned and occupied by Joshua and James Phillips with their families, John Bruce, the Messrs. Ropers—being the lands granted to Daniel Shepard and John Barker for the privilege of erecting mills (1721). Although no conveyances are yet found of earlier date than 1762, it is evident that the buildings were occupied long before, and the age of the house is carried well back toward 1721.

To this, even then, ancient dwelling, the "mansion house" of the 1771 deed, came Daniel and Sarah (Greenwood) Roper, from Sutton. Nine living children had been born to them there, of whom only five survived early childhood, and came to the Rutland home, where the tenth, Lucretia, was born. There Father Daniel passed the remainder of his life and laid himself down to rest from the burden of his ninety-one years. The daughters married substantial men in the vicinity. The families of the sons, Daniel and John, were in the old homestead at various times as the needs of their parents demanded, and both probably died there.

The town was early divided into school districts, that of New Boston, with twenty families being No. 8. Among these were Samuel Gates, Matthias Howe and Matthias Jun., Daniel Roper, Abraham Wheeler, Capt. Phineas and Daniel Walker, all of whom became allied by marriage. The little red school house must have been the hub of the universe to the young people in those days. They knew no other place of meeting or of merrymaking, and the Rutland Town Records bear witness that they improved their opportunities. The Gates house has disappeared, but the fine residence built by Capt. Walker in 1750, with the famous elm set at the same time, the Daniel Roper house and that of Abraham Wheeler remain unto this day. A part of the latter home is said to be the oldest structure in the town, which may be true. The earliest history mentions the locality as the first settled portion, the excellent water privileges having no doubt determined it.

Up to the year 1830, the Ropers were as numerous in Rutland as in Sterling and Princeton. Intermarriages of the two lines show that their intercourse was constant. The names of each branch were affectionately perpetuated in the other. But the star of the Ropers was taking its way westward and Rutlanders and Sterlings alike arose to follow. One son and the four daughters clung to their early home, unsmitten by the emigration fever, and spread into the neighboring towns, but the line of John fared otherwise.

After his death and the settlement of his estate by Horatio, the eldest son, the exodus began, continuing till not a member of that great family was left. Ephraim-Lyman had married a Roper descendant of Sterling (No. 163) and settled there. The others, five sons and a daughter, turned to what was then the West, Joseph last of all. To-day the name of Roper does not appear in the town, except upon the ancient gravestones of the New Boston Cemetery, where so many of our kindred peacefully await the Resurrection morning.

The removal of Joseph's family, which, as has been said, came last, was aided by modern inventions. This appears in the interesting account under No. 81, contributed by Miss Adaline Roper of Ligonier, Pa. The outline of Horatio's removals will be found under No. 79. Some of his descendants went to newer territory still and encountered there horrors of savage warfare that recall the Lancaster tragedies of 1676 and '97. An account of Mrs. Mary (Roper) Pay's experiences, written by herself, will be found under No. 144. The same uprising of the Annuity Sioux fell more heavily still upon a family of the Nathanael line of Sterling, that of Mrs. Barnes, No. 887, and also upon Laura, daughter of Joseph Beach Roper, (No. 496) of whose captivity among the Indians we have been unable to gather any details.

The descendants of the emigrating Ropers, Rutlanders and Sterlings, at present, spread from sea to sea, from Canada to Mexico. They have, hitherto in some cases, dwelt side by side without suspecting that kindred blood coursed in their veins. It is not without interest to observe the number of descendants of the two brothers, Ephraim and Daniel, enumerated in these records, which are very imperfect, notwithstanding the efforts made to secure returns from all the branches.

A few extracts from an account book kept by Joseph Roper, No. 81, form an interesting basis of comparison with prices as well as commodities of the present day. A glance will be sufficient to cause regret that coal strikes and the quoted price of wood were chronologically so far apart.

We also acknowledge with pleasure our obligations to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hanff of Rutland Centre, and to Miss D. R. Lewis, No. 632, Sterling, without whose aid some of our western kindred would not have been represented here.

DANIEL ROPER.

FOUNDER OF THE RUTLAND LINE.

49. Daniel Roper (5) (Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of Ephraim, founder of the Sterling Line, son of Ephraim and Sybillah (Moore) Roper, b. Worcester, October 2, 1730, m. Sutton, March 18, 1756, Sarah Greenwood, daughter of Daniel and Sarah — Greenwood, b. Sutton August 3, 1734. Her parents came from Framingham to that town about 1730, and were received into the church that year.

Daniel was two years old at the settlement of his father's estate in Worcester, and his mother was made his guardian. At the age of seventeen his uncle, Elijah Moore of Oxford, assumed the guardianship and it is more than likely that he remained in his kinsman's family for some years, as Mrs. Moore (Dorothy Larned) was the granddaughter of Ruth Roper (No. 10). One of the bondsmen either lived in or had business connection with Sutton and may have been the means of placing Daniel there. Nothing definite concerning him has been found between the dates of August, 1747, when Moore took the young man, and 1756, the time of his marriage to Sarah Greenwood. The records show that he continued a citizen of Sutton till he located in Rutland. He entered the Revolutionary Army at an early date, 1775-6, under Capt. Benjamin Richardson (Sterling) in the regiment of Col. Nicholas Dike; was at Dorchester Heights. He d. Rutland February 27, 1821. His wife passed away January 7, 1808. The ancient Family Bible, containing the following record is now in the possession of the family of the late Albert D. Roper, West Brookfield. Issue, except last, b. Sutton.

Rutland, November 30, 1759. The latter was an officer in the Revolutionary Army, came to Rutland from Sudbury where some of the children were born. The house built by him is a fine specimen of the old Colonial mansion, and well repays a visit. It is now the property of the State of Massachusetts, and will be used for the residence of the Superintendent of the Prison Reservation. The famous old elm, planted by him, is now carefully guarded by the

56. John Roper (6) (Daniel 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of Daniel and Sarah (Greenwood) Roper, b. Sutton, January 4, 1771, m. Rutland, January 11, 1798, Sarah Howe, daughter of Matthias and Azubah (Davis) Howe, b. Rutland, 1770, probably about October 14, as the baptism occurred October 21, 1770. The ancestry of Sarah Howe is traced through her mother, Azubah Davis, and her grandmother, Ellen Hubbard, wife of Nathan Davis, to Capt. John Hubbard, a prominent figure in the infant colony of Worcester from 1721 to '28. He was one of the selectmen in 1723, and filled various responsible offices till 1728, when he appears in the New Boston vicinity of Rutland and is at once placed upon the school committee. After the death of his first wife, Hannah, he married in Sudbury Azubah Moore, whose daughter, Ellen, became the wife of Nathan Davis. The two brothers, Daniel and John Roper, therefore, married women closely allied, since Nathan and Daniel Davis 2nd were half brothers, sons of Daniel Davis, Sen. John Roper was a farmer; d. March 29, 1826. His widow was received into church membership January 7, 1827, at which time there was a fervent interest in religious subjects. It is recorded that "on January 27, 1827, Horatio Roper and Anna, his wife, were baptized; also, the same day at the house of Horatio Roper, were baptized the following children: Alvin and John Jefferson, children of Widow Sarah Roper; also, Joseph William, Horatio Franklin and Samuel Gates, children of Horatio Roper." Horatio and wife were admitted to the church the same year, but the date is not legible. Sarah Roper d. April 11, 1828. Issue b. Rutland.

JOHN'S LINE (6).

79. Horatio Roper (7) (John 6, Daniel 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Son of John and Sarah (Howe) Roper, b. Rutland, January 1, 1799; m. Sterling, November 23, 1820, Anna Reed, daughter of William and Polly (Gerry) Reed, b. Sterling, November 3, 1801. She had been so much in the family of her kinswoman, Mrs. Joseph Roper (No. 68, of the Sterling Record) that she was considered by many to be the adopted daughter of the family. This probably explains Horatio's removal to Gibson, Pa. He remained in Rutland till his parents and grandparents had passed away, and their affairs were duly settled. The following outline of his life is furnished by his daughter, Mrs. Hunt, of Lake Crystal, Minn.:

"Horatio was the oldest of his father's family. He was a chairmaker by trade and worked at that while in Massachusetts, except for a time when he took care of his grandfather, and his mother Howe, and worked their farm. I think they left Rutland in 1830, and settled in Gibson, Pa., where he followed his trade, until he bought a farm. He went from there to Owego, N. Y., where he worked in the same way. We lived there till 1848, when we moved to Wisconsin and bought a nice farm on which we lived about forty years, or until the death of our parents. The farm is still known as the 'old Roper place.' Mother had died, October 5, 1866; father passed away March 16, 1887." This farm was near Horicon, Wis.

138. Joseph William (8) b. Nov. 25, 1821, m. Mary E. Latham.
139. Franklin Horatio (8) b. April 27, 1824, m. Clarissa A. Beers.

142. John Augustus (8) b. April 27, 1830, m. Emeline Tyler.

143. Josiah Clark (8) b. April 2, 1832, m. 1st Melissa A. Babcock; m. 2nd, Louise A. Babcock.
144. Mary Ann (8) b. Jan. 4, 1834, m. Benjamin Dobell Pay.
145. Lucia Louise (8) b. Nov. 18, 1835, m. Lucius O. Hunt.
146. Harriet Newell (8) b. Owego, N. Y., Nov. 13, 1837, d. April 11, 1865.

81. Joseph William Roper (7) (John 6, Daniel 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of John and Sarah (Howe) Roper, b. Rutland, December 7, 1801; m. there, March 31, 1825, Maria Lucetta Mendall, b. Barre, January 20, 1803. She d. Alton, Ill., March 14, 1896. He d. Ligonier, Pa., April 29, 1851.

It has already been stated that Joseph W. Roper remained in Rutland longer than the other members of the family. The following account of the removal is contributed by his daughter, now of Ligonier, Pa.:

MISS ADELINE L. ROPER'S REMINISCENCES OF THE TRIP OF
HER MOTHER AND FAMILY FROM RUTLAND TO LIGONIER, PA.

"Early in the year 1839 my father received a letter from his brother-in-law, Henry Mendall, who was living in New York City. In this letter he told of his brother Noah, who lived in Ligonier, Pa., and suggested that my father remove with his family to Ligonier and that Noah Mendall had written that if Roper was the right kind of a man he could give him plenty of work on his farm and furnish him with land and stock it. My father accepted the offer and early in March started West. He was dressed for his journey in a long brown surtout and a high black silk hat, and took with him a trunk covered with the hide of a black and white cow.

"Shortly after he left, we had a sale of most of our household goods, but kept enough bedding, etc., to fill three large boxes. These boxes we brought with us. About the first of April my mother started with her four children. We had stayed our last night in Rutland with the family of Mr. Rowland Wheeler, and early in the morning Mr. Wheeler drove us in a spring wagon to Worcester, where we were to take a train at nine o'clock for Charlestown, to stay a few days with mother's sister, Mrs. Seth Stevens. While in Worcester we had a short wait for the train. Mother, who was very tired, went in the parlor to rest and left me, a girl of thirteen, to watch the boys, George, aged seven, and Denney, aged five. Mother had the youngest girl, Charlotte, aged two, with her. I told the boys to sit on the doorstep and not move, and immediately lost myself in a book.

"Fifteen minutes before our train was due, mother came to me and asked me where the boys were. When we went to look for them, George was there, but Denney wasn't in sight. The alarm was immediately given and all hands started out to search. A woman who was also waiting on a train joined in the search and found him in tears, seated on a doorstep not far away. Without further adventure we reached Charlestown, where we remained a couple of days. From there we went by rail to Stonington, Conn., where we took the boat for New York. Leaving Stonington in the evening, we reached New York the next morning, where we took a cab to be driven to our Uncle Henry Mendell's house. Through some mistake we at first called the street 'Light,' instead of 'Laight,' and were driven to the wrong street. But the next move was the right one, and we found our uncle's house. We made our uncle a visit of a few days, and then left New York on the ferry for Jersey City. From there we went to Philadelphia, where we stayed all night. From there we went to Columbia, Pa., to take the canal. By mistake we went on to Lancaster, and had to return to Columbia and from there to Harrisburg, which we reached at night, and remained there all night. The accommodations were very meagre. Nine guests had to sleep on one bed. We remained in Harrisburg all day, which was Sunday. That evening at six o'clock we boarded the canal boat to go to Johnstown. The canal boat was a section boat. It was built in sections, one end being for the men, the other for the mules, and the middle for passengers. The ride in the canal was the most beautiful part of our journey. We crossed the Juanita river twice. In crossing, the boat was attached to a rope which, in turn, was fastened to a rope stretched across the river and fastened at either end to tall poles. The rope stretched across the river worked on pulleys, and when the boat was attached to it the mules would draw it across. We went through numerous locks, and when we got to Hollidaysburg there was a big basin in the canal, where the three sections of the boat were lifted on to trucks. The railroad ran down to the river. In that way we were carried across the mountains on the Portage Railroad to Johnstown. This railroad was a series of inclines with a stationary engine at the top of each incline, which drew the trucks up by ropes. At the summit of the mountain was a tunnel through which I walked. At Johnstown there was another basin and the sections of the boat were again set afloat. We were from

Sunday night until Friday night traveling from Harrisburg to Johnstown, where my father met us. He had been waiting a day for us. We travelled to Ligonier in the only carriage in Ligonier Valley. Our boxes were carried on a wagon. When my father showed us the rude log cabin that was to be our home my mother shed tears. The pigs were walking in and out the open door. The stove pipe was to open into a loft—didn't go out through the roof. But a little time and energy on our part soon transformed the log hut into a real home where we all spent some happy years.

D. W. Roper of Chicago sends the following excellent description of the workings of this old canal. It was taken from a Pittsburg paper, dated September 3, 1903:

"The mountains between Holidaysburg and Johnstown made it necessary to have a series of inclined planes. The distance over the ridge was thirty-six miles, and ten inclines were necessary, five on each side of the mountains. The canal, not extending the whole length of the State, it involved considerable changing of cargoes unless section boats were used or small cars that could be loaded at Philadelphia and after reaching the canal be run on to the boats without unloading. The section boats were made in four parts, bow, stern and the two central sections. Each one was loaded on a car at the starting point, and when the canal was reached they were run into the water and then chained together, making a boat of 60,000 pounds capacity. The canal was opened in 1828, and was at the height of its usefulness about 1845 to 1850."

172. Ruth L. (8) b. June 2, 1862, d. April 6, 1864.

At the age of 92 Mr. Roper was a remarkably well-preserved man in mind and body. From that time to the end, he failed noticeably. He had made all arrangements for his funeral, requesting that the service should be conducted like that of his first wife, Ruth (Reed) Roper. He selected the hymns to be used, as well as the text, "Blessed be the name of the Lord." He had caused his coffin to be made six years before. The end came peacefully at last in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sweet. Grandsons and great-grandsons bore him to the grave.

85. John Jefferson Roper (7) (John 6, Daniel 5, Ephraim 4, Ephraim 3, John 2, John 1)

Brother of preceding, son of John and Sarah (Howe) Roper, b. Rutland, August 2, 1813, moved to Gibson, Pa., where he m. After the second marriage he bought a farm in Brooklyn and lived there until his death. He possessed a large share of what has often been called the Roper ingenuity, was skilful in both mending and making shoes for home wear, in carpentering and blacksmithing. His daughter, Mrs. Potter, says of him: "At my earliest recollection he had a chair and bedstead factory; he also made coffins and filled the office of undertaker in the country town. He built a house on the Brooklyn farm in 1860, doing most of the work himself. He employed a brickmaker to lay one chimney, and after watching him was able to do the other himself. The plastering was done in the same way. Mrs. Roper continued to reside on his farm where she was cared for by her son Harry, until her death. Issue of 1st marriage b. Harford, Pa.:

197. Harriet K. Piper (8) b. Rutland, April 27, 1830, m. James T. Stevens.

Augustus Rich Piper was a man of remarkable ingenuity. His knowledge of mechanics seemed intuitive. Born before the days of technical education, he had to depend wholly upon himself. He constructed a cradle for his children that furnished its own lullaby. His greatest success was perhaps in working inlaid woods, of which he left some elegant specimens in tables and other furniture. He was a farmer, living on what is now known as the J. T. Stevens place. The dates of deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Roper have not been supplied.

 350. Mary Louise Pay (9) b. Mankato, Minn., Dec. 13, 1869. •

Mankato is in a limestone region. B. F. Pay is in business in cement, lime and building materials of various kinds. Miss M. L. Pay, graduate of Mankato H. S., is stenographer in her brother's establishment.

Mrs. B. D. Pay has been mentioned already, in connection with Mrs. Barnes, of the Sterling line, as a sufferer of the Annuity Sioux. The following account of her experiences in the "Wild West of Minnesota" has been received from her:

"In the fall of 1856 we left my father's home in Wisconsin, to seek a home of our own in the wilds of Minnesota. We traveled with a team, taking seventeen days of steady driving to cover the journey, which now can be made in fourteen hours. My youngest brother, Josiah, came with us. We arrived at a little town called Garden City the first day of November. The place had only three buildings at the time.

"This was the beginning of the hardest winter Minnesota ever experienced. There was so much snow that we were buried from the world. We were obliged to have a rope from the house to the barn, and to the little spring where we got water, in order to find our way back and forth. With such raging blizzards it was very dangerous to go many rods from home. We were twenty-five miles from a post office, or from medical aid.

"On the ninth of February my eldest son was born, and a hard time we had, raising the little fellow in such a cold, dreary winter, with only a shanty for shelter.

"On the eleventh of April, with a good body of snow still on the ground, word came to us that the Indians were coming, killing and burning everything before them. We all started from our homes at eight o'clock at night. My baby being undressed, we wrapped him in a blanket, taking, as I supposed, a basket of clothes for him, but it proved to be a basket of books. We drove across the prairie five miles to the little town of Garden City, where we fortified for a few days. The Indians did not kill many settlers at this time as they were stopped by the soldiers.

"We returned to our homes, and set about raising something on which to live. All planting was done in the sod, and for three years, corn bread was the chief diet. In 1858, my eldest daughter was born, and at that time and for three years after, all was peaceful. This was not to last, however, for on August 18, 1862, we were awakened at four o'clock in the morning by a neighbor calling to 'Get up, for the Indians were coming, killing and scalping all the settlers west of us, and burning everything about thirty miles west of us and coming nearer.'

"It was harvest time. Our wheat was cut and in the bundles. We thought we must set it up in the shock, for, if we were not killed, we must have something to live on. So we took our little ones and hid them in the cornfield near by, and went to work to do what we could, all the while watching settlers with their families, fleeing to places of safety. At length, all west of us were gone, and we could plainly see the smoke of the buildings burning at New Ulm, the place attacked. We began to think we must leave, so we turned out our stock, loaded up our wagon with necessary articles, and started. After a day or two of travel, the settlers decided to return to their respective homes and protect themselves, the Government having supplied them with guns. The frontier towns were strongly guarded: the Indians had been driven back, and all desired to return to their homes, to care for their stock and half-harvested grain. We got ours stacked. The feeling of security was short-lived, however. Although scouts had searched the country over without finding a trace of the enemy, the country really was full of straggling red men, stealing horses and killing all who could not get out of their way. When they got within three miles of us, we made up our minds that it was time to leave.

"We sold our stock to the Government, took nearly all of our household effects (which in those days were not many) and started out, fell in with others, and wandered over the broad prairies, imagining that every bush we saw was the deadly enemy. For ten days we went from place to place, but we finally reached Mankato, where we have lived ever since. We had men thresh our grain and secured what crops we had, sold our farm and went into business here.

"It was estimated that about one thousand people were killed, many of them by most horrible tortures. The cruelty of these savages cannot be imagined by people living in the East, nor, in fact, in the West, since the country has become settled. It was thought best to get as many soldiers together as possible and start out to capture the redskins, and many volunteers were ready to go with them. They gathered 1,658, who were sent to Fort Snelling. From there 392 of the condemned were brought to Mankato, of whom thirty-eight were hanged at that place December 26. The rest remained there till spring, when all who had escaped death by sickness were sent down the river to a prison near Davenport, where they remained till 1866, when the survivors were released and returned to their friends in Missouri. The thirty-eight who were hung were the leaders, but the people whose families had been killed, and who had suffered so much, would not have regretted to see them all executed. Men, women and children were so angry and excited, that, when they saw the prisoners they rushed upon them, and before the soldiers could interfere, pulled old men, women and children from the wagons by their hair."

The following paragraphs concerning Major George Stevens Roper are quoted from a sketch of his life, issued by the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, Commandery of the State of Illinois, by order of Brevet Brigadier General John C. Black, Commander:

"From his native place, when a boy, George Stevens

Roper removed with his parents to Western Pennsylvania, and there grew to young manhood with such advantages for education as the schools of that neighborhood afforded.

"At the early age of eighteen years he began the serious duties of life as a teacher in the common schools of Pennsylvania, and later became a clerk in the mercantile business. In 1854 he removed to Springfield, Ill., where he became a clerk and book-keeper in the dry goods establishment of S. M. Tinsley and Co., and later was a partner with Edward R. Ulrich, under the style of Ulrich and Roper, lumber dealers, and conducted the business of that firm at Alton, Ill., until 1859, when he returned to Springfield and again engaged in business there.

"It was during the years of his residence in Springfield prior to 1861 that Companion Roper established friendly relations with Abraham Lincoln, Stephen A. Douglas, Richard Yates and many other distinguished and historic men who made the capital of Illinois famous in that era as the gathering place of many of the greatest characters of the nineteenth century.

"Prior to 1861 Roper had been Secretary of the Springfield Library Association, and it was his relation to that organization which brought him into confidential intimacy with Douglas and Lincoln. He was a loyal admirer of Senator Douglas, and gave to that distinguished citizen his hearty support in the memorable campaign of 1858; but serious thoughtfulness upon the political issues of that day as they were presented in private conversation and public discourse by our martyred President, made him an enthusiastic lover of Abraham Lincoln.

"Companion Roper was a lineal descendant of King Philip, the scourge of Massachusetts in the seventeenth century. From that, if from no other ancestral source, he had inherited a love of human freedom and hatred of everything which fetters either the action or destiny of the individual. How natural it was then for such a spirit, awakened to a sense of duty by the swirl of the task-masters' lash and the groans of helpless bondmen, to join with all his heart and all his splendid energy in that wonderful campaign which resulted in the election of Lincoln to the Presidency, in November, 1860.

"It was under such circumstances that our Companion sang with such impressive effect, the songs of liberty, and it was in that memorable contest that by a charm of manner, and in tones of melody seldom equaled, he aroused in the hearts of multitudes impulses which will cease to beat only when the love of liberty and the hope of glory no longer control the human heart.

"When the cloud of war came, in 1861, and the great hero of his young manhood called for men at arms to defend the nation's life, Companion Roper was swift to offer his strength, his life and his patriotic services under his country's flag. His first services were rendered under the Military Department of the State Government of Illinois, but on September 9, 1861, he was commissioned a captain and commissary of subsistence in the Union army and reported immediately to General George H. Thomas, at Crab Orchard, Ky., for duty. From that time on, until the war closed, including the battles of Mill Springs, Perryville, and Chickamauga, to use his own words, he 'participated in all the marches and campaigns intervening, in which the troops under the immediate command of General George H. Thomas took any part.'

"He continued to serve on the personal staff of General Thomas until subsequent to the battle of Murfreesboro, when he was assigned first to the staff of General John M. Schofield, then to that of General James B. Steedman and later to that of General J. M. Brannan.

"On May 24, 1864, he was, by the order of General Sherman, assigned to duty on the military railroads centering in Nashville, Tenn., and was thereafter under the immediate command of General D. C. McCallum.

"Companion Roper, after the battle of Mill Springs and in January, 1862, was breveted major and commissary of subsistence, and his military services were rendered under that rank until January 28, 1866, when he was mustered out. He returned at once to his home and engaged in business, first at St. Louis, then at Alton, and finally located at Rockford, Ill., where in 1880, he organized the Manufacturers and Merchants' Mutual Insurance Company, and, as secretary of that corporation, he conducted with great success its business affairs until the day of his death.

"Thus was born and reared and lived, George Stevens Roper, whose life was so precious to every one of us, and whose memory will reverently abide with us all. What shall we say of such a life, of such a genial friend, and of such a royal companion? He was a man whose good qualities were without number, and whose ill ones, if any, were unknown. He was as gentle as a woman, trustful as a child, and his heart took in all men, all sects and all creeds. Too noble in his soul to doubt, and too large hearted to bear malice, the world was to him a place in which to do good, and where the right hearted could find in every human being some quality worthy of kindly recognition. * * *

“Roper will not be remembered because he acquired wealth in the avenues of trade and commerce; no monument will be erected to his memory because of any achievement by him in the fields of science or art or literature, but his noble deeds and his eloquent life will speak forever in his just praise. He was indeed a fit representative of that wide republic whose citizenship is made up from that innumerable band of heroic yet gentle souls, who, in their fraternal companionship, are all ‘princes of the line royal.’

“To his family we offer our affectionate condolences, and invoke for them the gracious favor of the loving Father of us all.

369. Jessie Adelaide (9) b. St. Louis, Mo., April 18, 1872.

John Sylvester Roper lived on the farm and attended country school until about thirteen years old, with one winter's session in the village. In March, 1856, he went to Springfield, Ill., where his two older brothers were then living. In the fall of that year he went to work to learn the trade of marble and stone cutting in a shop that did mostly cemetery work. Attended the High School of Springfield in the winter of 1859-60.

He was with the army in the Civil War during three months' service, though not enlisted, and in the fall of 1861 his brother, George, having been appointed commissary of subsistence, with rank of captain in United States Volunteers, he went with him as clerk. The service was mostly with the Army of the Cumberland, and later, on military roads with depots at Nashville and Chattanooga.

At the close of the war he returned to Springfield, Ill., and attended commercial school several months; went to the village of Elsah, Ill., to work for a St. Louis commission house and remained one year, buying wheat, etc. About the time of his marriage he entered the employ of a company operating quarries at Grafton, Ill.; was transferred 1870 to St. Louis to take charge of the company's books and office work. This company went into bankruptcy in 1873, and he worked for the assignee until 1875, when, with others, he organized the Grafton Quarry Co., and has continued secretary and treasurer of that company from its organization to the present time. He settled in Alton, Ill., 1872, and still resides there.

"Henry F. Colvin, well known in mechanical work throughout the country, was born in Plainfield, Ct., and gained his first knowledge of mechanics in the shop of his father, a prominent gunsmith. He afterward learned the trade of a locomotive engineer and machinist. In 1866
he took a position at Providence in the Rhode Island Locomotive Works, traveling and superintending the putting up of its locomotives. About the year 1875 he went to Philadelphia in the interests of the Rue Manufacturing Company, of which he became the manager in 1878, retaining that position to the present time. He is the inventor of the Fixed Nozzle non-lifting injector, the "Unique" single-tube injector and the "Paradox" automatic self-regulating injector, which are classed among the most important productions of his house and may very properly be ranked among the most notable productions of American genius and enterprise." From Phila-months. She was graduated 1902 from a three years' course in the Drexel Institute, Philadelphia.

Marvin L. Tiffany was for many years an engineer on the Lackawanna Railroad. The three men, Weaver, Tiffany and Colvin, who married three closely connected Ropers, were associated in early manhood as locomotive engineers, later taking up other lines of business. In the year 1880 Mr. Tiffany bought a farm in Lathrop, Pa., and did a large business there, running a creamery, buying and selling farm produce, etc. On the evening of his death he seemed in unusually good spirits. While arranging with a blacksmith for the purchase of some pipes to be placed in his creamery he fell forward. Death was instantaneous.

739. Roger Porter Colvin (10) b. East Orange, N. J., Aug. 31, 1901.

F. H. Colvin, president of the Derry-Collard Publishing Company, 256-7 Broadway, New York, was educated Providence, R. I., and Philadelphia. He inherited a decided taste for mechanics from his father, Henry F. Colvin, and has been actively engaged in some form of this work since July, 1883, either as worker or writer. He was employed as a draftsman in Worcester, 1892-93. From that time he has been engaged in editorial or literary work, always handling subjects connected with mechanics. Several years of shop practise on the various machines used in brass work, together with designing and making tools for their use, has given him a large fund of practical knowledge to draw from in his writings. He was editor of "Machinery," 1894-97; associate editor and manager of "Locomotive Engineering," 1897-1902, both of New York; president of the Derry-Collard Publishing Company, which he started in 1902, to which he has added (1904) the Educational Association of New York, entirely separate from the other company but working in harmony with it. In addition to this, he is himself the author of mechanical works and of serial papers on kindred subjects, always in the lead of the most advanced ideas in mechanics.

The Southern Ropers.

Of other families of the U. S. bearing the name of Roper, those in the north are believed to be more recent arrivals. The Gloucester branch came from Denmark early in the 19th century. The rest are from England, but came mainly from the central and northern portions, while the line forming the subject of this work was from the southeast. The Ropers of the Southern States date much farther back, and a comparison of all available facts leads to the belief that the first immigrants were kindred.

Thomas Roper, of Jamestown, Va., landed there not far from 1620, and died in 1622, whether from natural causes or in the Indian wars, is not recorded. No mention is yet found of his family. William and Margaret Roper were in the Barbadoes in the same century, and their son William was baptized there according to the rites of the Established Church. Whether either of these was the source of the early Ropers of the south, is at present uncertain, as there is a break in the records back of the year 1700. It seems likely, however, that Thomas, of Jamestown, and John, of Dedham, (1637) were akin, and that the coming of the former influenced the latter to emigrate. The churchman naturally settled in Virginia, the dissenter in Massachusetts. It is hoped that all uncertainties will eventually be removed and a full statement of lineage in these ancient lines become possible.

The only authorized record furnished is that of Richard Roper, born in Virginia about 1700—perhaps of the same line as the Ropers of Petersburg and Williamsburg, who originated in New Kent county, Va., in the 17th century. This fact alone is good evidence of their attachment to Southeastern England, where our common ancestors must have lived.

The issue of Richard Roper, (1) so far as known, is as follows: He was twice married; moved from Virginia to Northampton county, N. C.

Issue of 1st mar:

2. Frederick Roper, member of N. C. Meth. Conf.; married while preaching in Hyde Co., N. C. No further record.

3 and 4. James and John Roper: On record as Revolutionary soldiers. The descendants of John settled in Ga., Fla., and Tex.

Issue of 2nd mar:

5. Thomas Roper.

6. Charles Roper. No further record.

Thomas Roper, fourth son of Richard, had for issue four sons, Green, (7); Lewis, (8); James, (9), and John Wesley Roper, (10).. The last named.

John Wesley Roper, (10), b. Richmond Co., N. C., 1830, settled in Marlboro' Co., S. C.; married Henrietta V. McLaurin, cousin of Senator and Ex-Governor McLaurin, of Mississippi, born South Carolina, 1840, and died in 1869. Mr. Roper died 1894 on his cotton plantation in Marlboro, S. C. His son,

Daniel C. Roper, (11), b. Marlboro, S. C., Apr. 1, 1867, was educated at Trinity College, N. C.; member S. C. Legislature two years; private secretary to U. S. Senator Butler, of S. C.; Clerk of Com. on Interstate Commerce (Senate) three years; at present expert special agent in charge of the compilation of Cotton Statistics, Census Bureau, Washington, D. C.

He married, 1889, Lou McKenzie, of North Carolina.

Issue of Daniel C. and Lou (McKenzie) Roper, (fifth generation from Richard):

12 May, 13 Grace, 14 Hunter, 15 Daniel, 16 John and 17 Harry Roper.

The Roper Association of the United States

In its present form was organized in 1901, at the old Roper homestead, Sterling, Mass. It was the outgrowth of a smaller society previously existing in the line of Benjamin, and the officers of the parent organization are still retained by annual election. They are Rev. C. F. Roper, Winchester, N. H., President; H. H. Roper, East Hubbardston, Mass., Secretary, and W. M. Roper, of the same place, treasurer. The annual reunion is held on the last Wednesday of August at some place selected by the Executive Board. It aims to establish and promote acquaintance and friendship among the Sterling and Rutland Ropers, who, according to the Constitution, are eligible by birthright. All others bearing the name are gladly welcomed.

An equally important aim has been to obtain accurate historical knowledge of our ancestors, and this volume is one of the tangible results, embodying and perpetuating the lives of our forefathers in direct line of descent: John (1) of New Buckenham, Eng. and later Dedham, Mass.; John (2) and Ephraim (3) of Lancaster, Mass.; Ephraim (4) of Worcester; Ephraim (5) of Sterling and Daniel (5) of Rutland.
